Unemployment rate edges down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobs picture remained virtually unchanged in September, with a thin improvement in the unemployment rate countered by declines in total employment and the number of people actively trying to find work.

The Labor Department's last monthly report before the Nov. 2 election showed that the official jobless rate edged downward one-tenth of a percentage point, to 7.8 per cent of the work force, from the August totals.

At the same time, total employment stood at 87.8 million in September, down 162,000 from the month before. And the total civilian labor force, meaning persons with jobs plus those seeking them, was put at 95,203,000, down 280,000 from August.

The total employment and labor-force figures thus detracted from whatever cheer might otherwise be derived from the marginal improvement in the unemployment rate. Moreover, the department attributed the decline in the jobless rate, in part, to a drop in the figures for unemployed teen-agers, while the rate for adult men actually went up slightly.

Labor Department analysts said the changes, in any case, were not large enough to have statistical significance. "We consider it about unchanged, with both unemployment and employment on a plateau," said one official.

The job figures were the latest in a string of statistics indicating stagnant economic performance.

On Thursday, the department report that wholesale prices had soared by nine-tenths of a percentage point in September, a rate that would amount to about 11 per cent if projected over a year. That brought renewed attacks upon administration policies by Democrat Jimmy Carter and other critics, and today's report was certain to do the same.

While the jobless rate did decline after three consecutive monthly increases, the figure of 7.8 per cent is the highest at the time of any presidential election since 1940, when it was 14.8 per cent. Then, the size of the labor force was 55.6 million, with 8.1 million unemployed.

Coupled with rising prices and the slowdown in economic growth, the lack of improvement on the jobs front doubtlessly will fuel charges that President Ford is off base with his contention that his policies are leading the economy to sustained recovery.

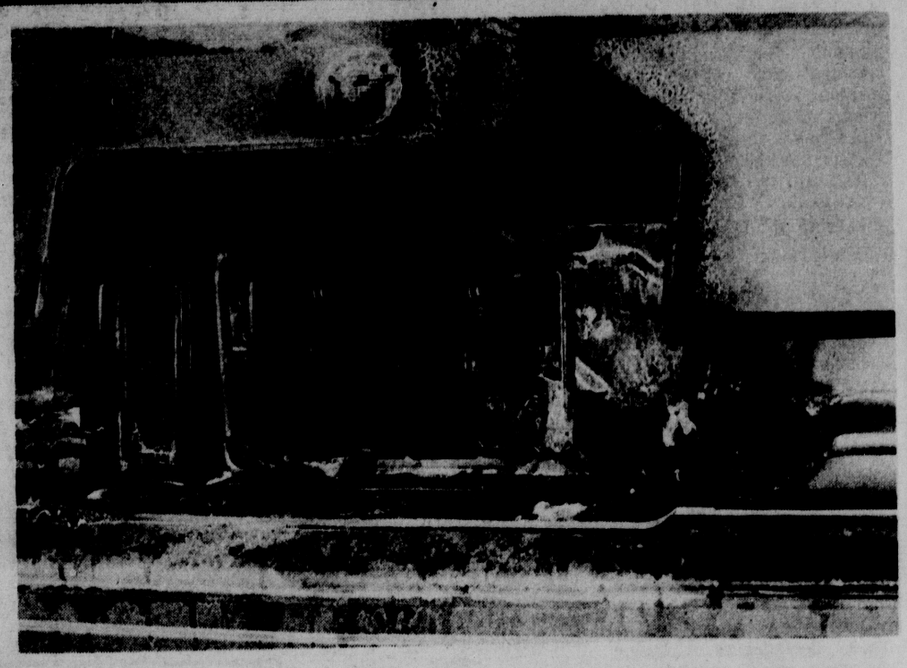
The slowdown in the number of Americans with jobs in August and September followed a period of sharply rising employment, which Ford had stressed was the result of his policies. Despite the halt in growth, total employment last month remained 3.7 million above the March 1975 recession low.

The average work week declined slightly to 36 hours, the lowest level since June and July 1975.

Average hourly earnings rose four-tenths of a per cent last month, but average weekly earnings dropped one-tenth per cent because of the shorter work week.

The job report follows Thursday's announcement that wholesale prices were up nine-tenths of 1 per cent last month, the steepest rise in 11 months.

Progress in reducing inflation and the gradual decline in joblessness earlier this year had been a strong point in Ford's election campaign.



Cadillacs damaged by fire

Fire damaged six 1977 Cadillacs about 2:30 a.m. today at SeMo Motor Co., 417 N. Main St. The fires were apparently set by igniting a wick which was stuck into the gas tanks of the cars. A seventh car was damaged shortly after midnight during a grassfire between the company lot and the Jaycee Swimming Pool. A Sikeston man has been arrested in connection with the fire that damaged the six Cadillacs.

Fire damages new Cadillacs

A 29-year-old Sikeston man was taken into custody about 2:30 a.m. today when he was found near SeMo Motor Co., 417 N. Main St., about the time fire damaged six 1977 Cadillacs.

The man, not immediately identified by the Public Safety Department, is facing a possible arson charge.

The fire was discovered by Detective Sgt. Dan Hinton, who saw flames coming from the six Cadillacs parked along the west side of the building.

The fires were apparently set by sticking wicks into the gasoline tanks and then setting fire to the wicks.

Hinton began extinguishing the fires with dry chemical fire extinguisher until the arrival of fire division personnel.

Other damage to the vehicles included cuts to the tops and various scratches to the bodies of the cars.

The monetary loss was not immediately available, according to the department.

The fire was the second at the automobile dealership today.

About 12:15 a.m. today, firemen extinguished a grass fire on the north edge of the company lot next to the Jaycee Swimming Pool. That fire caused minor damage to a used car.

Detective Lt. Jack Patterson said he did not know if there was a connection between the two fires.

Woman dies of injuries

Ethel Davis, 66, of Paragould, Ark., who was seriously injured in a three- vehicle accident in Dunklin County Wednesday, died at 7:10 p.m. Wednesday at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

The late death of Mrs. Davis brings the number of deaths on area roads to 89 this year, compared to 91 the same time last year.

Mrs. Davis was a passenger in a pickup truck driven west by her husband James M. Davis, 70, also of Paragould.

The accident occurred on Highway 164 at the junction of Route Y, 4 miles north of Hornersville when Davis failed to yield the right of way and pulled into the path of a northbound car driven by Lois J. Johnson, 56, of Senath.

Another passenger in the Davis pickup, Minnie Pearl Miller, 66, of Paragould, received serious injuries and was also taken to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

State candidates get OK for unlimited spending

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Elections Commission has given candidates for the Nov. 2 general election the green light to spend as much as they can to get elected.

The commission released a statement Thursday afternoon, saying the limitations on candidates' expenditures included in the campaign finance and disclosure law are unenforceable in the light of a U.S. Supreme Court decision which struck down similar limitations on spending in federal elections.

"What this resolution means is that the commission does not feel it is a productive use of resources to pursue legal action against candidates who expend more money than allowed by the limitations," said John S. Pletz, the commission's acting director.

Under the law, which is under consideration by the state Supreme Court, candidates for statewide offices were limited to a $421,000 expenditure ceiling, while those seeking state senator offices had limits of between $15,600 and $17,200, and the average limitation for state representative candidates was $3,450.

Cole County Circuit Court Judge Byron Kinder ruled the campaign law, which was overwhelmingly approved by the voters in 1973, as unconstitutional in September but said the commission could continue to enforce the law while an appeal of his decision was being considered by the Supreme Court.

Flu program ends 1st week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri marked its first week of the swine flu immunization program today, with health officials voicing cautious optimism over its success.

"We feel it's going as well as can be expected considering vaccine delivery delays," said James E. Donoho, director of the state inoculation program.

He said the state has received 578,000 doses of the vaccine, although Missouri needed a million to get started and another million the following week to keep the program going.

Both Donoho and Dr. H. Denny Donnell, director of personal health services for the state Division of Health, expressed three fears about the future of the program in Missouri.

They said there were afraid not enough vaccine will be received to inoculate everyone before the start of the flu season; although the program has begun, delays in shipments might dry up the pipeline creating needless public panic, and an outbreak of the disease before everyone gets immunized, which would also create panic.

Most of those who have received the shots in the state during the last week have been the elderly and chronically ill, Donoho said. Of the state's 578,000 doses, 308,000 were of the bivalent variety which is used to protect high-risk persons.

At the start of the program Oct. 1, some 320,000 doses had been distributed, and Donoho estimated Friday that about half of it had been used in the first seven days of the program.

Missouri will need about 2.7 million doses to take care of all eligivle residents, Donoho said.

"We would have liked to have had all that vaccine to start with," he added. He said the state has not received enough "to meet all our needs simultaneously," but that "the drug companies have done a lot better than their initial report to us as of a few weeks ago."

"We should have been able to start this thing in July. We were told July 15 would be the date for the first shipment, with all we needed to be received by Aug. 15," he added.

Donoho noted that just about every public and private service agency and organization in the state has volunteered its services to help out in the delivery of the vaccine and the inoculation program.

"If we vaccinated just our volunteers," Donoho said, "We'd probably reach half the people we need to vaccinate."

Names of firms boycotting Arabs will be disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — American businesses being asked by Arab countries to honor the economic boycott of Israel will have their identities made public from now on.

Those disclosures will be made by the Commerce Department in cases of boycott requests that U.S. businesses receive after Thursday. Firms that received such requests in the past will not be identfied publicly.

The new policy is the result of the policy reversal that President Ford announced during the Wednesday night debate with Jimmy Carter when Ford said the names of U.S. companies paticipating in the boycott will be made public.

Ford's handling of the Arab boycott during the debate is generating some sharp criticism of Ford and some confusion about what he intended.

He is being criticized by Democrats for misrepresenting Congress as opposing legislation to counter the boycott while portraying his administration as working for such a law.

The confusion stemmed from Ford's statement that the names of U.S. companies that "have participated in" the boycott would be disclosed. However, the Commerce Department said Thursday that only the names of companies involved with the boycott after Oct. 7 will be disclosed.

The crux of the boycott is the wish of the Arab nations to put economic pressure on Israel by refusing to do business with foreign companies that in turn do business with Israel.

The Arab nations obtain that information by requiring companies to fill out questionnaires — which the United States considers boycott requests — before they can be approved for a business transaction.

Such questionnaires are often sent to a number of different firms for a single transaction — such as the manufacturer, the bank that supplies financing and the shipping company that transports the product.

The Commerce Department now requires American companies to report to the department when they get such requests. Up to now, the names of those companies have been kept secret by the department.

State, federal offices will be closed Monday

State and federal offices will be closed in Sikeston Monday for the Columbus Day observance.

No driver's examinations will be given in Sikeston. Postal officials say there will be no mail delivery, although mail will be put up in post office boxes.

3 thefts reported

An automobile battery, money and a gun were reported stolen, the public safety department said today.

Joe Jefferson, 1114 Osage St., reported the theft of a 12-volt battery from his automobile, parked in front of his home between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Thursday. The battery was valued at $38.

Renita Gale Hardin, 412 Kendall St., rear, reported that $18 was taken from her billfold about 7:40 p.m. while she was working at K's Massage Parlor, 223 Trotter St. The billfold was in a purse by a desk when the theft occurred.

A .32 caliber revolver valued at $90 was taken between Sept. 27 and Oct. 7 from the office of Satterfield Wrecker Service, 207 N. Frisco St.

Gas firm hit by burglars

CHARLESTON — A black and white television, bicycle and a battery were reported taken in a break-in at Bootheel L. P. Gas Co. on west Commercial Street.

Police chief Bob Ritchey said a window on the west side of the building was discovered broken about 3 a.m. today by city patrolman Charlie Carthell, who was on routine patrol.

The business is owned by C. H. "Buddy" Randall.

Garrison hearing today

CORINTH, Miss. (AP) — A circuit court judge will hear arguments today whether six Corinth residents called to testify in the murder trial of Dr. Norman Garrison should go to Missouri for the trial.

Dunklin County, Mo., prosecutors requested that the six serve as witnesses for the prosecution in the trial that is scheduled for later this month.

Garrison is charged with murder in connection with the September 1974 murder of his former wife at her home in Kennett, Mo. He is free on $75,000 bond after losing an 18-month battle against extradition.

Missouri has requested tht Dr. Carl Welch, Dr. Ray Gregory, Fletcher Crawford, Dayton Potts, Amanda Bobo and Cathy Lyon Mathis testify at the trial.

State law grants hearings to persons who are requested by other states to serve as witnesses. The hearing will determine whether any of the six has a good reason for not testifying.

The hearing will be held here before Circuit Court Judge Fred Wicker of Pontotoc, Miss.

The official said the three women were called in an effort to refute Garrison's claim that he was on a houseboat in a lake near Corinth at the time of the murder.

Alderman resigns and joins police

ADVANCE — An alderman resigned his position Thursday night and was appointed a police officer.

Lloyd Wilfong, an alderman for about six years, was appointed policeman after working as a city marshal for about a month.

An election will be held to fill the vacancy, but the date has not been set.

The opening in the police department has remained unfilled for several months, since officer Jerry Harnes left town.

Advance has only one other police officer, Robert Hanks.

Biollot considered as Butz replacement

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The White House has inquired into the background of Missouri Agriculture Department Director James B. Boillot to determine if he could be a possible successor to former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

The office of Gov. Christopher S. Bond confirmed Thursday that a White House official called the Missouri chief executive earlier this week asking about Boillot. The unnamed Washington official said Boillot's name had been recommended by agriculture commissioners in other states.

Bond related his end of the conversation this way during a Kansas City news conference Thursday: "I said he happens to be my director of agriculture. While I'm honored and flattered that you are considering him, we've got a lot of things going in Missouri and I'm not sure we want to lose him."

Bond was referring to the drought which has devastated the state for the third straight year.

A spokesman in the governor's office said Bond was told the request for information was for a preliminary list of replacements for Butz, who resigned over the weekend for a racially-motivated comment he had made.

Questioned about the White House inquiry, Boillot said he "only had been told that there was a possibility of some consideration."

"I really think at this point that anything I might say would be unnecessary," Boillot said. "Apparently there has been some discussion along that line, but I don't know along what levels."

"Let's not say any more about it and see what happens," he added.

Butz has been temporarily succeeded by John A. Knebel, acting secretary of agriculture.

The most frequently mentioned names as Butz's replacements are those of Clayton Yeutter, former assistant secretary of agriculture and now a U.S. trade representative, and Richard Lyng, who is also a former assistant secretary of agriculture and now director of President Ford's re-election campaign in the nation's farm states.

When he was a Kingdom City farmer, Boillot was named as Missouri Agriculture Department director by Bond, shortly before he took office in January, 1973.

Boillot, 41, has farming operations in Callaway and Boone counties, and is a former board member of the Callaway County Farm Bureau.

He has a degree in animal husbandry and a master's degree in meat technology from the University of Missouri. He is president of the 12-state Midwest Agricultural Trade Council, a group supporting increased agriculture exports in the world market.

Unemployment rate edges down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobs picture remained virtually unchanged in September, with a thin improvement in the unemployment rate countered by declines in total employment and the number of people actively trying to find work.

The Labor Department's last monthly report before the Nov. 2 election showed that the official jobless rate edged downward one-tenth of a percentage point, to 7.8 per cent of the work force, from the August totals.

Names of firms boycotting Arabs will be disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — American businesses being asked by Arab countries to honor the economic boycott of Israel will have their identities made public from now on.

Those disclosures will be made by the Commerce Department in cases of boycott requests that U.S. busineses receive after Thursday. Firms that received such requests in the past will not be identfied publicly.

The new policy is the result of the policy reversal that President Ford announced during the Wednesday night debate with Jimmy Carter when Ford said the names of U.S. companies paticipating in the boycott will be made public.

Ford's handling of the Arab boycott during the debate is generating some sharp criticism of Ford and some confusion about what he intended.

He is being criticized by Democrats for misrepresenting Congress as opposing legislation to counter the boycott while portraying his administration as working for such a law.

The confusion stemmed from Ford's statement that the names of U.S. companies that "have participated in" the boycott would be disclosed. However, the Commerce Department said Thursday that only the names of companies involved with the boycott after Oct. 7 will be disclosed.

The crux of the boycott is the wish of the Arab nations to put economic pressure on Israel by refusing to do business with foreign companies that in turn do business with Israel.

The Arab nations obtain that information by requiring companies to fill out questionnaires — which the United States considers boycott requests — before they can be approved for a business transaction.

Such questionnaires are often sent to a number of different firms for a single transaction — such as the manufacturer, the bank that supplies financing and the shipping company that transports the product.

The Commerce Department now requires American companies to report to the department when they get such requests. Up to now, the names of those companies have been kept secret by the department.

The most frequently mentioned names as Butz's replacements are those of Clayton Yeutter, former assistant secretary of agriculture and now a U.S. trade representative, and Richard Lyng, who is also a former assistant secretary of agriculture and now director of President Ford's re-election campaign in the nation's farm states.

When he was a Kingdom City farmer, Boillot was named as Missouri Agriculture Department director by Bond, shortly before he took office in January, 1973.

Boillot, 41, has farming operations in Callaway and Boone counties, and is a former board member of the Callaway County Farm Bureau.

He has a degree in animal husbandry and a master's degree in meat technology from the University of Missouri. He is president of the 12-state Midwest Agricultural Trade Council, a group supporting increased agriculture exports in the world market.

WORLD POLL SHOWS U.S. BLESSINGS

A remarkable poll which, for the first time, measures attitudes of about two-thirds of the world's people, some 2.6 billion of them, was recently released in Washington, D.C. Conducted by Dr. George Gallup and funded by the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, the poll illustrates again why the United States, among relatively few of the world's nations, is blessed indeed.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the poll's results, which encompass a whopping 16 volumes, Gallup said one-hour interviews were conducted with 10,000 persons at every social level in more than 70 countries. They were asked 100 questions during the two and one-half year project.

"Nearly half of the people of the world are engaged in an unending struggle for survival," Gallup told the Senators. "Only in the advanced industrial states of the western world can the inhabitants engage in anything akin to a 'pursuit of happiness.' In the planning stages of this global survey, it was hoped that somewhere in the world a nation would be found whose people are poor but happy. We didn't find such a place."

Among poll results cited by Gallup were these:

at every income level, individuals in every region of the world surveyed were most concerned with: the ability of their country to overcome inflation and a high cost of living with unemployment, and with shortages of daily necessities, including food.

Almost one in four of those interviewed in Latin America would like to emigrate, with the U.S. their first choice.

Persons surveyed in Third World countries believe their condition will improve with time, however bad it is. People in South America and Africa, in fact, are relatively more optimistic about the future than those in advanced industrial nations.

There is a message in this Gallup Poll for all Americans. It is: our citizens are very fortunate. The economic and political systems that have met so many of their material, psychological, and spiritual needs deserve revering and defending — not knocking.

APPROPRIATE REMINDER

Everybody has been so preoccupied in celebrating the Bicentennial that the quindecimcentennial has gone almost unnoticed.

It was 1500 years ago this summer that mighty Rome fell, recalls UPI writer Jack R. Payton. Historians agree, anyway, that A. D. 476 was the year that the last western Roman ruler was deposed by Germanic invaders.

Since Americans are particularly fond of citing the fall of the Roman empire as an example of what happens when a country forgets its founding principles, the reminder is appropriate in this Bicentennial year.

The Romans took their own sweet time rising and falling, however — about a thousand years. That doesn't even count the eastern Roman empire, Byzantium, which lasted another thousand years, until 1453, or very nearly to the discovery of America.

The western Roman empire endured for half a millenium. Before that, the Roman republic had been around almost as long, until Julius Caesar crossed the Rubicon and put an end to it. By contrast, the United States has been in existence a mere 200 years.

If we hang on as well as the Romans did, it will be some accomplishment.

LOOKING BEHIND THE NEWS

Sitting out here in the boondocks where intrigue and trickshots in politics are confined to a few in city hall, the county courthouse and the state capital, most of us can't comprehend that a curious war is being waged all over the globe and especially in the United States against America's intelligence apparatus.

It is a war in which some of the major thrusts have been made in congressional hearing rooms. There, demagogues displaying an often mindless desire to dismantle the U.S. national security machinery have played in to the hands of international terrorists and domestic political activists whose declared intentions are to "neutralize" or dstruct the Central Intelligence Agency.

The predictable reaction: Richard S. Welch, Harvard '51, a scholarly looking man, was the CIA chief of station in Athens until he was gunned down in front of his home by three masked assassins as he and his wife returned from a Christmas party at the U.S. Embassy.

He had been in Greece five months as special assistant to Ambassador Jack Kubisch. His name was not listed in the diplomatic books. But about a month before his murder a left-leaning English language newspaper in Athens, the Daily News, had printed information spotlighting Welch as the CIA chief in Greece.

The paper provided a complete biography of Welch, his address and phone number. It similarly identified six other CIA agents attached to the U.S. mission.

Yannis Horn, the publisher of the Athens paper, said he received the information from a group calling itself "The Committee of Greeks and Greek-Americans." Supposedly, he shrugged his shoulders at the murder of Welch, saying: "I received a piece of news. I printed it, as the U.S. and world press does."

Yet, when Yannis received a letter naming 10 top Soviet KGB agents operating in Athens, he refused to print it.

As the Greek government posted a $175,000 reward for the capture of Welch's murderers it was clear to most journalists and diplomatic, intelligence and governmental officials on both sides of the Atlantic that the CIA officer had been "fingered" and that the finger had originally been pointed somewhere in the United States.

It is hoped that by his sacrifice, Richard Welch will have shocked Congress into pursuing its examination of our intelligence community in a more responsible way.

COMPARISON OF POLITICIANS VS. BUSINESS

In 1915, a phone call from San Francisco to New York cost $20; today it costs only $1.36 plus tax. In 1915, $20 would have mailed 1,000 letters; today it mails only 200. Private enterprise runs the telephone company; the government runs the postal service.

The General Accounting Office (Congress' watchdog of the Treasury) recently concluded that it cost the Social Security Administration nearly twice as much to process a claim in 1973 as it cost privately owned companies to process a Medicare claim.

Garbage collection costs the average municipal agency nearly 70 per cent more than it costs the average private firm to do the job, according to a Columbia University study.

We cite these items because we need to stop and consider the results of the free enterprise system. If business were guilty of the mismanagement and deception which created New York City's fiscal crisis, you can be sure Ralph Nader would be screaming from atop the Empire State Building. Washington politicians and bureaucrats would be beside themselves if business had run up a $215 billion debt in the last decade, igniting double-digit inflation and producing a severe recession.

There seems to be a double standard in Washington, D.C., when it comes to assessing government and business, and this double standard is all too often evident in the laws and regulations which come out of the Congress and its appointed agencies.

Although big business is made out to be the villain, it is the small businessman who frequently must bear the burden of heavy taxation, piles of paperwork and complex government regulations.

You've heard a thousand times that government can do it cheaper than private enterprise because government doesn't make a profit--but that was the logic used by the man who killed the goose which laid the golden egg.

IMPORTANT RESEARCH...

Congress has just appropriated $260,000 for a study of prostitution. Why a study on this particular profession is needed now we don't know, but we thought that some of our Congressmen were already experts in this area and had made their own private studies. We wonder who is to get paid, the studyee or the studyor? Anyhow, $260,000 will require a lot of study by a lot of people.

Several years ago, our government invested a similar amount for the study of the sex habits of the Russian Beetle. So, at last, our Congress is going to make this a government study of, for and by the people. This should prove to be one of the most interesting research projects ever attempted by our government. We just hope we are kept informed of the results.

BALANCING CLAIMS

"Only in a free market system is each individual certain of his right to strive and excel for his own material benefit—and therefore for the incidental benefit of his fellow citizens. A progressive and dynamic free society holds these ideals of equality and excellence simultaneously in a creative tension, balancing the claims for sharing against the incentives for striving."

NOT A FAIR BASE FOR JUDGMENT

Government officials issue statements that our Gross National Production is up, thereby indicating that the nations business is improving.

But--the basis for that report was for total value, not total items.

With prices constantly increasing, actual production can drop way back, but total values rise.

Such predictions are misleading.

We might as well estimate that twice or three times as much land is being sold as was being sold a year or so ago, basing that judgment on total prices paid, not on total acres sold.

If we want a true picture of the GNP in the United States, we must base our estimates on articles or weights or measures, not on total value.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Black Gold:

Revolutionary Cadres, Parties, Leagues dispatch agents to coal fields to hit 'Capitalist' U.S.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.: It's hilly, but no longer really "hillbilly" out in the mining patches. True, the coaldiggers still will respect anything which resembles a picket, even if it's a totem pole or a cigar store wooden Indian standing in the dark at pit's head. That's tradition.

But the United Mine Workers' 170,000 working members, now ever younger, more literate, some hacking coal below despite college degrees on home walls above, are learning that tradition comes costly these days.

They've learned that the ultras -- the Maoist, Marxist, Leninist radicals, are coming in ever-increasing cadres. These militants have dug in deep. And the price of some of their wildcat provocation runs to the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The coaldiggers have found themselves out of pocket in lost wages totalling many score millions in recent years. The companies' losses are just as heavy. And the UMW Health and Retirement Funds, headquartered in Washington, lost at least $500,000 a day during recent illegal stoppages. One of these funds has opened a $5 million credit line so it can borrow if necessary to pay old-age pensions, according to reports here.

Last July 26, the Funds' chairman himself, Harry Huge, disclosed, "The Funds are losing an estimated $500,000 a day as a result of the current work stoppage in West Virginia."

There were almost 50,000 diggers striking. Since the unauthorized walkouts were sweeping other states, Huge was worried over the Funds' "financial stability," and thus the security of old-age retiree pay to tens of thousands of miners whose pension checks are their only bread.

It shouldn't be thought that all the wildcatters were out of the mines because the neo-radicals have found such areas as Boone County, a tempting "proletarian" target. But it can be reported, on the basis of intelligence records in Washington, that the ultras have done a skillful job of provocation and extending wildcat walkouts in the critical industry which fuels most of America.

These ultras aren't mere radical missionaries of chowder, cheese and chess sects eager for contact with the "workers." They're tough. They have money and are willing to travel and distribute anti-capitalist Marxist "literature." They are the young activists of the Revolutionary Union, the Maoist, Marxist-Leninist October League, the Revolutionist Communist Party, even the Communist Party U.S.A. and the Socialist Workers' Party just to list a few.

But hark you now to the Workers' League. It's close to the Workers' Revolutionary Party (WRP) of Great Britain. Its leaders here talk of themselves as "Trotskyite." As for its British counterpart, it's radical, all right. All left, rather, even of the British Labor party's extreme left.

So it'll be on the record, on Sept. 29, 1975, according to the prestigious British daily the Guardian, the police raided the study center of the Workers' Revolutionary Party, near Ashbourne, in Derbyshire Village.

This building was purchased, according to the Guardian, by Corin Redgrave on behalf of the WRP. He and his sister, Vanessa Redgrave, are central committee members of the organization, say the British authorities and the Guardian.

And the London Times of Oct. 3, 1975, reported that the WRP was so doctrinaire that it alienated even Labor's left. On Feb. 3, 1976, the London Times said that the WRP gave a course to teenagers in smashing capitalism. The classes were held at Red House Education Center near Ashbourne.

Well, who turns up at the UMW convention in Cincinnati the other day but a reporter for the Bulletin, the semi-weekly, New York-based organ of the Workers' League. Derbyshire is a long way from Cincinnati. But the ultras apparently have the money to travel and print and proselytize.

As for the October League, it's not exactly short of funds either. Its newspeople were also at the UMW convention. Along with the chap from the Bulletin, and other ultras, they were ordered to leave the hall.

The October League has an active Chicago headquarters Last Dec. 28-29 (1975) the league ran a 1,000 delegate convention. They claimed to have launched a new front at this National Fight Back Conference.

The Revolutionary Union shares the Chicago area. Its operatives have been in the West Virginia district for almost two years now whipping up right-to-strike sentiment. So whipped up did it all become that some 80,000 coaldiggers were wildcatting during August 1975. And in the middle was a husky character by name of Skip Delano, who was quite a muscular activist in the New York Metro Area Postal Union until he was nailed by anti-Marxist union president Moe Biller. Then Skip slipped quietly into the coalfields.

Well, the UMW, his new union is quite a target. It's worth $80 million. It controls virtually all coaldiggging. If it strikes it can brown out cities, slow the railroads, paralyze the steel industry and cripple auto manufacturing, just for starters.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

MONDALE AND FOREIGN AID

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Every time I read about a new speech given by Democratic candidates Jimmy Carter or Walter Mondale, I shudder to think how much it's going to cost us in additional taxes.

In what was described as a major speech on U.S. foreign policy, Sen. Mondale recently charged America with lacking a "proper concern for the so-called Third World" and with being "indifferent to people seeking greater justice." He berated us because there are half a billion people now living on the edge of starvation and accused us of being "insensitive" to "international economic security."

In all recorded history, there has never been anything to compare to the sensitive outpouring of American dollars to help the needy and less fortunate around the rest of the world. The generous American taxpayers have given away more than $200 billion to more than 100 foreign countries.

The original purpose of foreign aid was to stop the advance of communism. When President Harry Truman signed the first foreign aid bill in April, 1948, he said: "This is the answer to the challenge facing the free world."

After 29 years of foreign aid, the Communist challenge facing the free world is far greater than ever before. The Communists have consolidated and made permanent their control of Eastern Europe and China, and extended their control over Southeast Asia, Cuba and, most recently, Angola and Mozambique in Africa.

Foreign aid is now extended even to Communist countries.

There is no evidence that foreign giveaways ever bought us any friends. Many of the big recipients of American grants consistently vote against us in the United Nations.

There is considerable doubt that U.S. foreign aid is of any real long-term benefit to underdeveloped countries, anyway. Foreign aid often goes into the hands of the minority political clique that happens to be in control, it encourages the establishment of uneconomic industries that can't be sustained without subsidies and it promotes reliance on external help instead of self-improvement. Hong Kong is an example of how a poor country can pull itself up by its own bootstraps by hard work and ambition.

Foreign giveaways are the biggest ripoff of the American worker that the liberals ever devised. We pay first in direct taxes, second in the inflation caused by the deficit spending required to make the payments, third in high interest costs because most foreign aid is borrowed money and fourth in the loss of jobs from the drain of capital investment.

Every poll taken in the United States shows that foreign aid is the least popular of all federal spending programs. There is no demand from the voters to continue these annual giveaways. Yet, if there are three certainties in this uncertain world, they are death, taxes and foreign aid. Congress just passed another annual foreign aid bill of $5 billion, and even that figure does not include the billions more hidden under other headings.

The only excuse for Mondale's ill-advised speech urging more foreign aid is that he didn't write it himself. He was reading a speech written for him by Carter's Georgia brain trust. The best thing Mondale can do is to disavow it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

House Speaker Could Have Blocked Ford Nomination

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Sources close to Speaker Carl Albert say he could have been President today if he had been willing to manipulate the congressional machinery.

In discussions so secret that staff members were excluded, some Democratic colleagues urged Albert in 1973 to hold up the confirmation of Gerald Ford to be Vice President. This would have left the Speaker next in line for the presidency.

The Democratic schemers predicted that the embattled Richard Nixon, then in the last ditches of his presidency, would be impeached. He was unworthy, they argued, to select his own successor.

All Albert had to do, they suggested, was to delay Ford's confirmation and wait for Nixon to be impeached. Then under the Constitution, Albert could take over the White House and bring the Democrats to power.

This possibility stirred deep controversy at the secret strategy discussions. Some argued that it would amount to a Democratic coup and, therefore, would alienate the voters. Others contended that the Republicans had been so badly discredited by Watergate that a Democratic takeover would be best for the country.

Our sources disagree over how serious the Democrats were about blocking Nixon's vice presidential selection. Some say the idea never got beyond loose talk. Others insist that if Albert had gone along, Ford's confirmation would have been obstructed.

One top Democrat, privy to the backstage discussions, told us that Albert could have become President merely by remaining neutral. It took Albert's active opposition, said our source, to thwart the scheme.

All our sources agree that the Speaker refused to hold up Ford's confirmation. During one discussion, he cited the second section of the 25th amendment to the Constitution. It states simply "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Albert declared firmly that he did not intend to tamper with the constitutional processes.

Nixon nominated Ford for Vice President on Oct. 12, 1973. Ten days later the House Judiciary Committee began an inquiry into possible impeachment charges against Nixon. By late November, it appeared to leading Democrats that there were grounds to impeach him.

Our sources differ over who led the move to delay Ford's confirmation until Nixon was impeached. Some say it was House Majority leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, D.-Mass. But O'Neill told us he supported the Speaker.

Our sources recall that the matter finally was brought up at a secret caucus of House Democrats. House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., warned that any delay in the confirmation process would violate the spirit of the 25th amendment. Speaker Albert strongly agreed. So on Dec. 6, 1973, Gerald Ford was confirmed.

Footnote: The Speaker did not return our repeated calls.

OLD RAMROD: Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., who comports himself like the last surviving Civil War general, has been a model of personal integrity. He lives scrupulously on his Senate salary. Even his speaking fees wind up in a loan fund for needy college students.

But Old Ramrod has let his standards droop a bit when it came to three of his trusted lieutenants. Thurmond siphoned thousands of dollars to the trio through an obscure loophole in a 1964 law.

The law was passed to prevent military men from collecting fat government pensions at the same time that they received regular government paychecks. But a loophole was chilseled in the law to allow the Vice President, House Speaker and Civil Service Commission to grant exemptions in "special" and "emergency" cases.

The Vice Presidents have granted only 10 emergency waivers in the past five years. Of these, Thurmond wangled three of them. He arranged for three of his aides to collect retirement pay and Senate salaries at the same time.

They are his administrative assistant Lou Beasley, a retired lieutenant colonel; military assistant K.K. Cowan, an ex-colonel; and staff aide Emory Sneeden, a retired brigadier general.

The last case is the most interesting. Thurmond wanted to hire Sneeden, but Sneeden didn't want to work for the $25,000 Thurmond could afford to pay him.

So Thurmond slipped around to see his fellow confederate, Sen. James Eastland, D.-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee where Thurmond planned to place Sneeden.

The obliging Eastland arranged with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller to certify Thurmond's man for an exemption. Eastland assured Rockefeller that there was a "special" and "emergency" need for Sneeden to work for the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee.

Thus, Sneeden was able to collect his $27,000 retirement pay along with his $25,000 Senate wages for a happy total of $52,000. But Sneeden, whose services supposedly were so urgently needed by Judiciary's Antitrust subcommittee, reported for work not at the subcommittee's offices but at Thurmond's Senate suite.

To be sure, Sneeden was placed on the subcommittee's payroll -- and he claims he worked half time on subcommittee business -- but he operated full time out of Thurmond's offices. Incidentally, he has had almost no antitrust experience, although Eastland certified his skills couldn't easily be found elsewhere.

Footnote: Sneeden belatedly moved over to the subcommittee staff this summer. A Thurmond spokesman said neither of the other two aides would have been willing to work for only their Senate salaries.

LOOKING BEHIND THE NEWS

Sitting out here in the boondocks where intrigue and trickshots in politics are confined to a few in city hall, the county courthouse and the state capital, most of us can't comprehend that a curious war is being waged all over the globe and especially in the United States against America's intelligence apparatus.

It is a war in which some of the major thrusts have been made in congressional hearing rooms. There, demagogues displaying an often mindless desire to dismantle the U.S. national security machinery have played in to the hands of international terrorists and domestic political activists whose declared intentions are to "neutralize" or dstruct the Central Intelligence Agency.

The predictable reaction: Richard S. Welch, Harvard '51, a scholarly looking man, was the CIA chief of station in Athens until he was gunned down in front of his home by three masked assassins as he and his wife returned from a Christmas party at the U.S. Embassy.

He had been in Greece five months as special assistant to Ambassador Jack Kubisch. His name was not listed in the diplomatic books. But about a month before his murder a left-leaning English language newspaper in Athens, the Daily News, had printed information spotlighting Welch as the CIA chief in Greece.

The paper provided a complete biography of Welch, his address and phone number. It similarly identified six other CIA agents attached to the U.S. mission.

Yannis Horn, the publisher of the Athens paper, said he received the information from a group calling itself "The Committee of Greeks and Greek-Americans." Supposedly, he shrugged his shoulders at the murder of Welch, saying: "I received a piece of news. I printed it, as the U.S. and world press does."

Yet, when Yannis received a letter naming 10 top Soviet KGB agents operating in Athens, he refused to print it.

As the Greek government posted a $175,000 reward for the capture of Welch's murderers it was clear to most journalists and diplomatic, intelligence and governmental officials on both sides of the Atlantic that the CIA officer had been "fingered" and that the finger had originally been pointed somewhere in the United States.

It is hoped that by his sacrifice, Richard Welch will have shocked Congress into pursuing its examination of our intelligence community in a more responsible way.

COMPARISON OF POLITICIANS VS. BUSINESS

In 1915, a phone call from San Francisco to New York cost $20; today it costs only $1.36 plus tax. In 1915, $20 would have mailed 1,000 letters; today it mails only 200. Private enterprise runs the telephone company; the government runs the postal service.

The General Accounting Office (Congress' watchdog of the Treasury) recently concluded that it cost the Social Security Administration nearly twice as much to process a claim in 1973 as it cost privately owned companies to process a Medicare claim.

Garbage collection costs the average municipal agency nearly 70 per cent more than it costs the average private firm to do the job, according to a Columbia University study.

We cite these items because we need to stop and consider the results of the free enterprise system. If business were guilty of the mismanagement and deception which created New York City's fiscal crisis, you can be sure Ralph Nader would be screaming from atop the Empire State Building. Washington politicians and bureaucrats would be beside themselves if business had run up a $215 billion debt in the last decade, igniting double-digit inflation and producing a severe recession.

There seems to be a double standard in Washington, D.C., when it comes to assessing government and business, and this double standard is all too often evident in the laws and regulations which come out of the Congress and its appointed agencies.

Although big business is made out to be the villain, it is the small businessman who frequently must bear the burden of heavy taxation, piles of paperwork and complex government regulations.

You've heard a thousand times that government can do it cheaper than private enterprise because government doesn't make a profit--but that was the logic used by the man who killed the goose which laid the golden egg.

IMPORTANT RESEARCH...

Congress has just appropriated $260,000 for a study of prostitution. Why a study on this particular profession is needed now we don't know, but we thought that some of our Congressmen were already experts in this area and had made their own private studies. We wonder who is to get paid, the studyee or the studyor? Anyhow, $260,000 will require a lot of study by a lot of people.

Several years ago, our government invested a similar amount for the study of the sex habits of the Russian Beetle. So, at last, our Congress is going to make this a government study of, for and by the people. This should prove to be one of the most interesting research projects ever attempted by our government. We just hope we are kept informed of the results.

BALANCING CLAIMS

"Only in a free market system is each individual certain of his right to strive and excel for his own material benefit—and therefore for the incidental benefit of his fellow citizens. A progressive and dynamic free society holds these ideals of equality and excellence simultaneously in a creative tension, balancing the claims for sharing against the incentives for striving."

NOT A FAIR BASE FOR JUDGMENT

Government officials issue statements that our Gross National Production is up, thereby indicating that the nations business is improving.

But--the basis for that report was for total value, not total items.

With prices constantly increasing, actual production can drop way back, but total values rise.

Such predictions are misleading.

We might as well estimate that twice or three times as much land is being sold as was being sold a year or so ago, basing that judgment on total prices paid, not on total acres sold.

If we want a true picture of the GNP in the United States, we must base our estimates on articles or weights or measures, not on total value.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Black Gold:

Revolutionary Cadres, Parties, Leagues dispatch agents to coal fields to hit 'Capitalist' U.S.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.: It's hilly, but no longer really "hillbilly" out in the mining patches. True, the coaldiggers still will respect anything which resembles a picket, even if it's a totem pole or a cigar store wooden Indian standing in the dark at pit's head. That's tradition.

But the United Mine Workers' 170,000 working members, now ever younger, more literate, some hacking coal below despite college degrees on home walls above, are learning that tradition comes costly these days.

They've learned that the ultras -- the Maoist, Marxist, Leninist radicals, are coming in ever-increasing cadres. These militants have dug in deep. And the price of some of their wildcat provocation runs to the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The coaldiggers have found themselves out of pocket in lost wages totalling many score millions in recent years. The companies' losses are just as heavy. And the UMW Health and Retirement Funds, headquartered in Washington, lost at least $500,000 a day during recent illegal stoppages. One of these funds has opened a $5 million credit line so it can borrow if necessary to pay old-age pensions, according to reports here.

Last July 26, the Funds' chairman himself, Harry Huge, disclosed, "The Funds are losing an estimated $500,000 a day as a result of the current work stoppage in West Virginia."

There were almost 50,000 diggers striking. Since the unauthorized walkouts were sweeping other states, Huge was worried over the Funds' "financial stability," and thus the security of old-age retiree pay to tens of thousands of miners whose pension checks are their only bread.

It shouldn't be thought that all the wildcatters were out of the mines because the neo-radicals have found such areas as Boone County, a tempting "proletarian" target. But it can be reported, on the basis of intelligence records in Washington, that the ultras have done a skillful job of provocation and extending wildcat walkouts in the critical industry which fuels most of America.

These ultras aren't mere radical missionaries of chowder, cheese and chess sects eager for contact with the "workers." They're tough. They have money and are willing to travel and distribute anti-capitalist Marxist "literature." They are the young activists of the Revolutionary Union, the Maoist, Marxist-Leninist October League, the Revolutionist Communist Party, even the Communist Party U.S.A. and the Socialist Workers' Party just to list a few.

But hark you now to the Workers' League. It's close to the Workers' Revolutionary Party (WRP) of Great Britain. Its leaders here talk of themselves as "Trotskyite." As for its British counterpart, it's radical, all right. All left, rather, even of the British Labor party's extreme left.

So it'll be on the record, on Sept. 29, 1975, according to the prestigious British daily the Guardian, the police raided the study center of the Workers' Revolutionary Party, near Ashbourne, in Derbyshire Village.

This building was purchased, according to the Guardian, by Corin Redgrave on behalf of the WRP. He and his sister, Vanessa Redgrave, are central committee members of the organization, say the British authorities and the Guardian.

And the London Times of Oct. 3, 1975, reported that the WRP was so doctrinaire that it alienated even Labor's left. On Feb. 3, 1976, the London Times said that the WRP gave a course to teenagers in smashing capitalism. The classes were held at Red House Education Center near Ashbourne.

Well, who turns up at the UMW convention in Cincinnati the other day but a reporter for the Bulletin, the semi-weekly, New York-based organ of the Workers' League. Derbyshire is a long way from Cincinnati. But the ultras apparently have the money to travel and print and proselytize.

As for the October League, it's not exactly short of funds either. Its newspeople were also at the UMW convention. Along with the chap from the Bulletin, and other ultras, they were ordered to leave the hall.

The October League has an active Chicago headquarters Last Dec. 28-29 (1975) the league ran a 1,000 delegate convention. They claimed to have launched a new front at this National Fight Back Conference.

The Revolutionary Union shares the Chicago area. Its operatives have been in the West Virginia district for almost two years now whipping up right-to-strike sentiment. So whipped up did it all become that some 80,000 coaldiggers were wildcatting during August 1975. And in the middle was a husky character by name of Skip Delano, who was quite a muscular activist in the New York Metro Area Postal Union until he was nailed by anti-Marxist union president Moe Biller. Then Skip slipped quietly into the coalfields.

Well, the UMW, his new union is quite a target. It's worth $80 million. It controls virtually all coaldiggging. If it strikes it can brown out cities, slow the railroads, paralyze the steel industry and cripple auto manufacturing, just for starters.

MONDALE AND FOREIGN AID

By PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

Every time I read about a new speech given by Democratic candidates Jimmy Carter or Walter Mondale, I shudder to think how much it's going to cost us in additional taxes.

In what was described as a major speech on U.S. foreign policy, Sen. Mondale recently charged America with lacking a "proper concern for the so-called Third World" and with being "indifferent to people seeking greater justice." He berated us because there are half a billion people now living on the edge of starvation and accused us of being "insensitive" to "international economic security."

In all recorded history, there has never been anything to compare to the sensitive outpouring of American dollars to help the needy and less fortunate around the rest of the world. The generous American taxpayers have given away more than $200 billion to more than 100 foreign countries.

The original purpose of foreign aid was to stop the advance of communism. When President Harry Truman signed the first foreign aid bill in April, 1948, he said: "This is the answer to the challenge facing the free world."

After 29 years of foreign aid, the Communist challenge facing the free world is far greater than ever before. The Communists have consolidated and made permanent their control of Eastern Europe and China, and extended their control over Southeast Asia, Cuba and, most recently, Angola and Mozambique in Africa.

Foreign aid is now extended even to Communist countries.

There is no evidence that foreign giveaways ever bought us any friends. Many of the big recipients of American grants consistently vote against us in the United Nations.

There is considerable doubt that U.S. foreign aid is of any real long-term benefit to underdeveloped countries, anyway. Foreign aid often goes into the hands of the minority political clique that happens to be in control, it encourages the establishment of uneconomic industries that can't be sustained without subsidies and it promotes reliance on external help instead of self-improvement. Hong Kong is an example of how a poor country can pull itself up by its own bootstraps by hard work and ambition.

Foreign giveaways are the biggest ripoff of the American worker that the liberals ever devised. We pay first in direct taxes, second in the inflation caused by the deficit spending required to make the payments, third in high interest costs because most foreign aid is borrowed money and fourth in the loss of jobs from the drain of capital investment.

Every poll taken in the United States shows that foreign aid is the least popular of all federal spending programs. There is no demand from the voters to continue these annual giveaways. Yet, if there are three certainties in this uncertain world, they are death, taxes and foreign aid. Congress just passed another annual foreign aid bill of $5 billion, and even that figure does not include the billions more hidden under other headings.

The only excuse for Mondale's ill-advised speech urging more foreign aid is that he didn't write it himself. He was reading a speech written for him by Carter's Georgia brain trust. The best thing Mondale can do is to disavow it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

House Speaker Could Have Blocked Ford Nomination

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Sources close to Speaker Carl Albert say he could have been President today if he had been willing to manipulate the congressional machinery.

In discussions so secret that staff members were excluded, some Democratic colleagues urged Albert in 1973 to hold up the confirmation of Gerald Ford to be Vice President. This would have left the Speaker next in line for the presidency.

The Democratic schemers predicted that the embattled Richard Nixon, then in the last ditches of his presidency, would be impeached. He was unworthy, they argued, to select his own successor.

All Albert had to do, they suggested, was to delay Ford's confirmation and wait for Nixon to be impeached. Then under the Constitution, Albert could take over the White House and bring the Democrats to power.

This possibility stirred deep controversy at the secret strategy discussions. Some argued that it would amount to a Democratic coup and, therefore, would alienate the voters. Others contended that the Republicans had been so badly discredited by Watergate that a Democratic takeover would be best for the country.

Our sources disagree over how serious the Democrats were about blocking Nixon's vice presidential selection. Some say the idea never got beyond loose talk. Others insist that if Albert had gone along, Ford's confirmation would have been obstructed.

One top Democrat, privy to the backstage discussions, told us that Albert could have become President merely by remaining neutral. It took Albert's active opposition, said our source, to thwart the scheme.

All our sources agree that the Speaker refused to hold up Ford's confirmation. During one discussion, he cited the second section of the 25th amendment to the Constitution. It states simply "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Albert declared firmly that he did not intend to tamper with the constitutional processes.

Nixon nominated Ford for Vice President on Oct. 12, 1973. Ten days later the House Judiciary Committee began an inquiry into possible impeachment charges against Nixon. By late November, it appeared to leading Democrats that there were grounds to impeach him.

Our sources differ over who led the move to delay Ford's confirmation until Nixon was impeached. Some say it was House Majority leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, D.-Mass. But O'Neill told us he supported the Speaker.

Our sources recall that the matter finally was brought up at a secret caucus of House Democrats. House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., warned that any delay in the confirmation process would violate the spirit of the 25th amendment. Speaker Albert strongly agreed. So on Dec. 6, 1973, Gerald Ford was confirmed.

Footnote: The Speaker did not return our repeated calls.

OLD RAMROD: Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., who comports himself like the last surviving Civil War general, has been a model of personal integrity. He lives scrupulously on his Senate salary. Even his speaking fees wind up in a loan fund for needy college students.

But Old Ramrod has let his standards droop a bit when it came to three of his trusted lieutenants. Thurmond siphoned thousands of dollars to the trio through an obscure loophole in a 1964 law.

The law was passed to prevent military men from collecting fat government pensions at the same time that they received regular government paychecks. But a loophole was chilseled in the law to allow the Vice President, House Speaker and Civil Service Commission to grant exemptions in "special" and "emergency" cases.

The Vice Presidents have granted only 10 emergency waivers in the past five years. Of these, Thurmond wangled three of them. He arranged for three of his aides to collect retirement pay and Senate salaries at the same time.

They are his administrative assistant Lou Beasley, a retired lieutenant colonel; military assistant K.K. Cowan, an ex-colonel; and staff aide Emory Sneeden, a retired brigadier general.

The last case is the most interesting. Thurmond wanted to hire Sneeden, but Sneeden didn't want to work for the $25,000 Thurmond could afford to pay him.

So Thurmond slipped around to see his fellow confederate, Sen. James Eastland, D.-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee where Thurmond planned to place Sneeden.

The obliging Eastland arranged with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller to certify Thurmond's man for an exemption. Eastland assured Rockefeller that there was a "special" and "emergency" need for Sneeden to work for the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee.

Thus, Sneeden was able to collect his $27,000 retirement pay along with his $25,000 Senate wages for a happy total of $52,000. But Sneeden, whose services supposedly were so urgently needed by Judiciary's Antitrust subcommittee, reported for work not at the subcommittee's offices but at Thurmond's Senate suite.

To be sure, Sneeden was placed on the subcommittee's payroll -- and he claims he worked half time on subcommittee business -- but he operated full time out of Thurmond's offices. Incidentally, he has had almost no antitrust experience, although Eastland certified his skills couldn't easily be found elsewhere.

Footnote: Sneeden belatedly moved over to the subcommittee staff this summer. A Thurmond spokesman said neither of the other two aides would have been willing to work for only their Senate salaries.

FIRES

Firemen were called to National Lock plant on Keystone Drive at 2:31 p.m. Thursday, according to the Department of Public Safety Fire Division.

The call came as a result of an alarm malfunction. There was no fire.

Firemen were called shortly before 10 a.m. to extinguish a car fire at the intersection of East Malone Avenue and Ingram Street. The car belonged to Raymond Reeves, 617 Dempster St.

The fire, which did minor damage, was apparently caused by the lack of a filter in the air cleaner.

JEFFERSON CITY — A Democratic State Committee report says, not surprisingly, that Gov. Christopher S. Bond is "a follower, not a leader."

Prepared by a University of Missouri-Columbia graduate student employed by the committee since June, the report highlights unfavorable news stories about Bond's administration but did say Bond is "basically an honest and decent individual." The report then goes on to add that Bond "erroneously believes he is doing a good job."

A spokesman for Bond's re-election campaign said he hadn't seen the report, but the most surprising reaction to it has come from the Democrats' own gubernatorial candidate, Joseph Teasdale.

Teasdale has told reporters he's been running against Bond for three years and sees no reason to follow advice from anyone else on how to run his campaign. He has given the indication he doesn't intend to use the report in his campaign.

The Missouri Elections Commission may have violated the state's open meetings law when it discussed budgetary matters in a closed session called to deal with litigation.

That recent meeting in Columbia also resulted in the resignation of Anne Forry as executive director of the commission, the second resignation of a director this year.

The commission usually holds a closed session in its monthly meetings to discuss cases where a possible violation of the state's campaign finance law may have occurred. Decisions on whether to instigate litigation in such cases can be made in closed session under the open meetings law.

But the commissioners then discussed the number of personnel desired for the next fiscal year along with other budget matters and that may not fall under the exemptions of the open meetings law.

The exemptions for public bodies under which closed meetings may be held are for land purchases, discussion of pending litigation and the "hiring, firing or promotion of personnel".

The "hiring, firing or promotion of personnel" has been considered by many reporters to cover individual cases, not the overall number of persons to be hired for any year.

Opponents of the constitutional amendment seeking to exempt food and drugs from the state sales tax say state schools could expect to lose about $65 million if that exemption is approved.

But proponents of the amendment say legislators would have time to replace the loss by taxing another source and said they doubt schools would lose any money.

A spokesman for Concerned Missourians Against Food and Drug Amendment said that replacing that lost revenue would be "an extremely difficult task."

Three of the state's six elected state officials have come out against the amendment with one in favor and two abstaining.

A secret meeting between Atty. Gen. John Danforth and Auditor George Lehr apparently settled nothing about the selection of a site near Kansas City for a medium-security prison.

FIRES

Firemen were called to National Lock plant on Keystone Drive at 2:31 p.m. Thursday, according to the Department of Public Safety Fire Division.

The call came as a result of an alarm malfunction. There was no fire.

Firemen were called shortly before 10 a.m. to extinguish a car fire at the intersection of East Malone Avenue and Ingram Street. The car belonged to Raymond Reeves, 617 Dempster St.

The fire, which did minor damage, was apparently caused by the lack of a filter in the air cleaner.

Write-in campaign begins in attempt to replace Shelly

CARUTHERSVILLE — A write-in effort by the Democratic Central Committee is to be launched today in an attempt to unseat sheriff, Thad O. Shelley.

Shelley, a Democrat, has been embroiled in a controversy concerning both how he runs the office and his private marital affairs.

He is the target of a state audit and investigations by the county prosecutor and Missouri Highway Patrol. These could lead to his ouster for misconduct in office.

And he also is the target of a suit by his wife, asking courts to determine if he is still married to her or if he is legally married to the woman he is living with in an apartment here.

In addition, there has been talk of removing him from the school board of the Hayti schools.

The Pemiscot County Democratic Central Committee today will hold a public meeting to select a candidate for a write-in effort in the Nov. 2 general election.

A third candidate has already begun a write-in campaign. He is John Turnage, who ran in the primary.

The central committee already has asked Shelley to resign, but he refused.

Senath man faces life in imprisonment

JACKSON — A Senath man was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment in connection with the shooting death of a Senath liquor store clerk Feb. 24.

The sentence was handed down in Cape County Circuit Court against Loal Junior Joiner, 35, who was found guilty of the murder by a Circuit Court jury Sept. 8.

A cousin, Bobby Ray Joiner, also is scheduled to stand trial here on a first-degree murder charge stemming from the shooting of John Frank Holder. His trial was originally set for Wednesday, but has been rescheduled for Nov. 9 and 10.

A third man accused of the murder, John Abbott, is to stand trial in Stoddard County Circuit Court. All three were granted changes of venue.

Loal Joiner also is facing two charges of burglary and stealing. He is to be tried on those charges in January.

Public interest group seeks Democratic platform change from Burlison, Carter

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A national citizens' lobby has asked Congressional candidate Rep. Bill D. Burlison, 10th Missouri District Congressman, and Presidential nominee Jimmy Carter to repudiate the Democratic Party Platform plank calling for amendment of the Hatch Act.

In open letters to Jimmy Carter and Rep. Burlison, David Denholm, executive vice president of the Public Service Research Council, said that the attempt to amend the Hatch Act was a union power play to permit the unions to use coercion to force federal workers into a gigantic union political machine.

The Hatch Act is a 1939 law which protects federal employes from being coerced into partisan political activity.

The Democratic Party Platform provision calling for Hatch Act revisions was the only one that was added to the platform on the convention floor. Denholm said in his letter to Rep. Burlison that this switch was engineered by a new group of militant leftwing union bosses known as the Labor Coalition.

The Research Council's letters stressed a recent public opinion survey indicating that 74 per cent of the American public supports retaining the Hatch Act in its present form.

The Public Service Research Council is a national organization with more than 500,000 members. It is the parent organization of Americans Against Union Control of Government. AAUCG conducted a massive citizen lobby campaign earlier this year against the Hatch Act amendments which resulted in a veto by President Ford.

Columbus Day address set

A special Columbus Day address will be heard over a local Radio station on Oct. 11, according to an announcement made by Jim Jones, grand knight of St. Francis Xavier Knights of Columbus Council Number 3151 in Sikeston.

Jones said the address would be delivered by Dr. John W. McDevitt, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus. The executive head of the more than 1.2 million member Catholic, family, fraternal, service organization will speak on "In God We Trust."

In commenting on the program, Jones said, "484 years ago, Christopher Columbus completed one of the most daring and courageous exploratory sea voyages recorded in the annals of mankind — the discovery of the North American Continent. One and a quarter million men of the western hemisphere, all Knights of Columbus members, join together this week in observing this the anniversary of Columbus' epic voyage."

In addition to the special radio broadcast, the local council will conduct its annual Tootsie Roll drive for retarded children.

Circuit breaker tax relief less successful than expected

By MICHAEL S. WEISBERG
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — At least 75,000 Missourians have been unaccounted for since 1973. While their whereabouts remain a mystery, authorities say they suspect most of the missing to be somewhere in the Missouri countryside.

A profile of the missing shows them to be at least 65 years old, with annual incomes below $7,500. They also tend to be property owners, but a spokeswoman for the state Department of Revenue says "we really can't be too sure of that."

Donald Marshall, a University accountancy professor who has worked closely with the problem, says he still cannot figure out who or where these people are. For years now, he and a posse of college students have ventured into rural Missouri in search of these elderly recluses. He has found some each time.

An enthusiastic Texan, Marshall encourages their emergence with money. This inducement, provided by the state, takes the form of a property tax relief called the "circuit breaker."

In theory, this tax relief is like the electrical circuit breaker, a means to avoid overload and breakdown. But the qualified elderly simply have not been plugged into the idea.

In 1973, the current of the circuit breaker idea buzzed 13 states into adopting "the most widely growing form of property tax relief."

Under Missouri's original law, elderly persons with incomes up to $6,500 a year would get a credit on their state income tax for local property taxes they paid. If the credit were in excess of the state tax they owed, a rebate would be paid them by the state.

Elderly renters were able to claim 18 per cent of money spent on "actual" rent, not including furnishings or utilities.

At that time, it was expected the state would spend $13 million on at least 138,000 persons. Some legislators guessed that closer to 300,000 senior citizens would qualify. Everyone was wrong.

In the first year of the program, Missouri paid only $5 million to 53,476 persons. The circuit breaker wasn't working and Missouri lawmakers were shocked. At least 75,000 persons who could have filed did not.

Revisions were made. Legislators and bureaucrats here said the changes were a "liberalization" that would attract and include more of the aged.

The income ceiling was raised to its present level, $7,500 annually, and the rent deduction was increased to 20 per cent. Forms, originally frightening and complex, were simplified.

Former state Revenue Director James Spradling estimated that 10,000 to 15,000 additional elderly Missourians would be eligible for higher refunds because the new, liberal circuit breaker law would allow a maximum property tax credit of $500 instead of $400.

Yet fewer than 2,000 more elderly persons benefitted in 1975 than in 1973, although the average refund climbed to $125 from $98.

Why so few claimants? Where could they be? Offer people money and usually they come running. Why not now?

Perhaps when the legislature was changing forms, it should have been changing its ways. Unlike Congress, the Missouri General Assembly usually does not provide money for public information campaigns, sometimes called "media blitzes." This may be one of the greatest problems of the circuit breaker program.

Newly appointed Director of Revenue A. Gerald Reiss said that, all things considered, his department is doing all it can to get the word out on the program. "All things" is legislative appropriations.

The circuit breaker was first introduced by a massive mailing campaign. More than 400,000 forms and brochures were sent throughout the state to nutrition sites, nursing homes and retirement centers, private residences and just about any place the elderly might meet. But because of limited funds, the mailings were cut nearly in half the next year.

The revenue department also depends on the media to share the load. Throughout the six-month filing period (January to June), dozens of press releases are dispatched to every newspaper in Missouri. This "missionary PR work," as Reiss calls it, also involves broadcast outlets.

Radio spots can be heard throughout the spring and, in cooperation with the University of Missouri extension division and the agricultural economics department, a 30-minute television program, talk-show style, was produced.

The program, "Tax Benefits for Senior Citizens," was broadcast by 11 stations in the state between February and June 1975. It had a potential viewing audience of 958,000 persons and it was paid for by the University.

Although the responsibility for educating the elderly lies with the Department of Revenue, the state Office of Aging and the nine area agency offices it funds also pitch in.

Initially, a representative from the Senior Citizens Credit Group at the revenue department worked full-time with the Office of Aging to acquaint social service directors in the area offices with the program. Once directors felt they had reached a full understanding of the program the effort was stopped.

But each area Office of Aging agency has its own newsletter in which information about anything of concern to the elderly is passed on. The offices usually have staff members trained to help senior citizens understand taxes and tax forms. There are also councils and committees within each agency that address senior citizens' groups about the circuit breaker and other programs.

Ron Rauch, executive director of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging, said the program got a slow start there. Too many persons did not understand it and some had never heard of it before entering his office.

Rauch points to other troubles with the circuit breaker that he says account for the relatively low and slow response. In the outlying counties where real property is assessed at low valuations, most home owners, even if they are 65 and even if they have little yearly income, do not qualify for rebates.

They become disappointed, word spreads and many persons who might be eligible become skeptical and stay away.

It is also difficult, he explained, to make someone understand that income tax does not have to be paid to get a circuit breaker rebate.

Things are getting better now, he and the director at the Northeast office say, but neither is willing to call the program a success.

Darol Quiring of the Central Missouri office in Columbia says the problem with the circuit breaker, though largely informational, is psychological as well. He says there is a strong anti-welfare sentiment associated with tax relief.

Elderly persons fear they are taking too large a share of the pie, taking a piece that may belong to someone else, he says, and the aged will make a desperate effort to remain independent of the state or anyone else. "It's one thing to disseminate information," he said, "but quite another to change minds."

The circuit breaker program has met a bit more success in urban Missouri where information channels are more accessible and property taxes higher.

Roy Davidson, who directs the Mid-East Area Agency on Aging in St. Louis, says the response in the four-county area around the city has been "very good."

He attributes the good response to providing information directly to the aged by persons carefully trained and experienced with the program.

Visits Sikeston

Betty Hearnes of Charleston talks with David Ragan, administrator of the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, left, and Steve Taylor, Scott County chairman for the Hearnes for Senator committee, during a campaign trip through Sikeston Thursday. Mrs. Hearnes said she and her husband former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, will be campaigning in different parts of the state until the Nov. 2 general election, and she is stopping at facilities such as the diagnostic clinic, which were built during Hearnes' terms as governor.

Diet can help control cholesterol

Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Cooperative Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, MO 65101.

Q. I am a man 33 years old. Last March I was advised to go on a low- fat diet because my blood triglyceride level was too high. What is the difference between triglycerides and cholesterol?

A. Both of these compounds are blood lipids (fats). However, they are distinctly different substances. While they are normally found in the blood, high levels of either compound in blood is associated with an increased risk for cardiovascular disease.

Cholesterol has received more attention than other blood lipids. Men aged 30-49 years with high levels in the blood (over 260 mg. cholesterol per 100 ml. of blood plasma) have been found to be three to five times as likely to develop heart disease as men in the same age range whose plasma cholesterol levels are below 220 mg.-100ml. Although definitive data is lacking on triglycerides, it appears likely that they have a similar relationship to incidence of heart disease.

Most people are unaware of their blood lipid levels unil tests are made following a heart attack. To help prevent heart disease, screening for excess plasma cholesterol probably should begin during infancy — some health officials believe that measurements could properrly be made on cord blood at birth.

Routine examinations to detect high levels of blood lipids are strongly advised for everyone between the ages of 20 and 30 years. When excess amounts of lipids are found in the blood, the patient should work closely with a physician to bring the problem under control. Diet alone may be effective in accomplishing this, but medications are sometimes also necessary.

Blood lipids normally tend to increase with age, and higher levels in people over 55 years are not as well correlated with risk for cardiovascular disease. The problem, called arteriosclerosis, is a degeneration of the arteries which develops over years of time. Treating a young person to lower abnormal levels of blood lipids may help prevent the disease in later life.

Q. Will it be necessary for me to follow a diet for the rest of my life?

A. If you are not overweight it is possible that substantial improvement in your condition may allow your physician to relax diet restrictions somewhat in time. However, the learning of proper food habits could very well bring about a permanent change in your eating patterns.

Every person old enough to think about his or her own welfare should be conscious of diet. To eat food simply to satisfy one's hunger or "taste" and thus to ignore nutritional needs is being irresponsible about health just as much as ignoring personal hygeine needs or the proper care of eyes and teeth.

The diet you are currently following to help reduce blood lipids has many good features. First, it is balanced to supply all the vitamins, minerals and protein you need with the right amount of energy (calories) to allow for physical activity but to prevent excess weight gain. It contains less meat and animal fats than you used to eat and these are the foods that were contributing to your elevated readings of blood lipids. They also probably crowded out vegetables, fruits and cereal foods that you now emphasize in your diet, and thus helped to "unbalance" it because of the healthful vitamins and minerals that were lacking.

BOURBON APPLES

A quick-and-easy dish from our Kentucky neighbor.

1 can (21 ounces) apple-pie filling
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1-3rd cup bourbon

In a 1-quart casserole stir together all the ingredients — they will not fill the baking dish. Bake, covered, in a preheated 350-degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes. Makes 6 or more quite sweet servings.

Ann Landers

Families of patients need to be educated

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a nursing home mainly for elderly people who need to be rehabilitated. They have had a variety of illnesses, mostly strokes, arthritis and broken bones. We have helped many people walk again, talk again, and return to a life worth living.

My anger is directed against the families of my patients. For example: I have in my care a woman who is grossly obese. We put her on a diet but her daughters are full of guilt because they feel their mother should be living with them. So they attempt to ease the guilt by bringing her candy, cakes, cookies -- everything she shouldn't eat. This woman is gaining weight instead of losing and we can't do anything about it.

Another patient who had a stroke could not feed himself. We worked diligently with him and he was doing well. Then his daughter decided we were being mean to her father. She started to come to the hospital daily to spoon-feed him. Now he has become totally dependent and refuses to do anything for himself.

I can't sign my name because nurses are expected to be compassionate toward everyone. I guess I'm a failure because my compassion goes primarily to my patients.

Please print this. Somebody might learn something.-- Seattle

Dear Seattle: As one who is close to the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, I am well aware of the dedication of physicians, nurses and therapists.

According to Dr. Henry Betts, medical director of the Institute, they encounter very little of the recalcitrance you describe at his facility because educating the families is considered part of the treatment. When relatives understand the importance of cooperation, they become part of the team.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers family planning for pets will be a reality soon. A dog food with a birth-control ingredient is being tested in eight cities. One company ran tests for two years on 200 female beagles. None became pregnant.

The U.S. has 36 million dogs and 27 million cats underfoot. This "miracle food" will solve a serious problem. Pass the word! --R.P.

Dear R.P.: When the product is available, I hope it is well advertised because I don't sell anything in this column, no matter how good.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Santa Fe" written by a mother about her three sons illustrates the effects of marijuana far better than anything I can say.

What that mother is describing is symptomatic of the brain syndrome and thought disorder which results from cannabis, or to put it more simply, the condition that follows the consistent smoking of pot.

As director of the Maryland Drug Abuse and Research and Treatment Foundation, I've seen the introversion, mystical and "magical" thinking, the anti-motivational state, regression and other changes that have probably damaged 20 million people to date. All this without their awareness.

After 11 years of meaningful, longitudinal drug and alcohol studies, we have concluded that the smoking of pot is one of the major factors responsible for the polarization and alienation of our country. Yes, you can quote me. I am -- Alfred Milliman, J.D.

Dear Mr. Miliman: Thank you for an enlightening letter. In spite of some studies which say marijauana is harmless, I, for one, believe marijuana is NOT harmless. I base my conclusions on the hundreds of letters from readers who have written to tell me how pot has messed up their heads and they ought to know.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Visits Sikeston

Betty Hearnes of Charleston talks with David Ragan, administrator of the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, left, and Steve Taylor, Scott County chairman for the Hearnes for Senator committee, during a campaign trip through Sikeston Thursday. Mrs. Hearnes said she and her husband former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, will be campaigning in different parts of the state until the Nov. 2 general election, and she is stopping at facilities such as the diagnostic clinic, which were built during Hearnes' terms as governor.

Diet can help control cholesterol

Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Cooperative Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, MO 65101.

Q. I am a man 33 years old. Last March I was advised to go on a low- fat diet because my blood triglyceride level was too high. What is the difference between triglycerides and cholesterol?

A. Both of these compounds are blood lipids (fats). However, they are distinctly different substances. While they are normally found in the blood, high levels of either compound in blood is associated with an increased risk for cardiovascular disease.

Cholesterol has received more attention than other blood lipids. Men aged 30-49 years with high levels in the blood (over 260 mg. cholesterol per 100 ml. of blood plasma) have been found to be three to five times as likely to develop heart disease as men in the same age range whose plasma cholesterol levels are below 220 mg.-100ml. Although definitive data is lacking on triglycerides, it appears likely that they have a similar relationship to incidence of heart disease.

Most people are unaware of their blood lipid levels unil tests are made following a heart attack. To help prevent heart disease, screening for excess plasma cholesterol probably should begin during infancy — some health officials believe that measurements could properly be made on cord blood at birth.

Routine examinations to detect high levels of blood lipids are strongly advised for everyone between the ages of 20 and 30 years. When excess amounts of lipids are found in the blood, the patient should work closely with a physician to bring the problem under control. Diet alone may be effective in accomplishing this, but medications are sometimes also necessary.

Blood lipids normally tend to increase with age, and higher levels in people over 55 years are not as well correlated with risk for cardiovascular disease. The problem, called arteriosclerosis, is a degeneration of the arteries which develops over years of time. Treating a young person to lower abnormal levels of blood lipids may help prevent the disease in later life.

Q. Will it be necessary for me to follow a diet for the rest of my life?

A. If you are not overweight it is possible that substantial improvement in your condition may allow your physician to relax diet restrictions somewhat in time. However, the learning of proper food habits could very well bring about a permanent change in your eating patterns.

Every person old enough to think about his or her own welfare should be conscious of diet. To eat food simply to satisfy one's hunger or "taste" and thus to ignore nutritional needs is being irresponsible about health just as much as ignoring personal hygeine needs or the proper care of eyes and teeth.

The diet you are currently following to help reduce blood lipids has many good features. First, it is balanced to supply all the vitamins, minerals and protein you need with the right amount of energy (calories) to allow for physical activity but to prevent excess weight gain. It contains less meat and animal fats than you used to eat and these are the foods that were contributing to your elevated readings of blood lipids. They also probably crowded out vegetables, fruits and cereal foods that you now emphasize in your diet, and thus helped to "unbalance" it because of the healthful vitamins and minerals that were lacking.

Bourbon apples

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

BOURBON APPLES

A quick-and-easy dish from our Kentucky neighbor.

1 can (21 ounces) apple-pie filling
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1-3rd cup bourbon

In a 1-quart casserole stir together all the ingredients — they will not fill the baking dish. Bake, covered, in a preheated 350-degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes. Makes 6 or more quite sweet servings.

Anita Carr of Sikeston is the troop leader and the assistant leader is June Shehan of Sikeston.

Ann Landers

Families of patients need to be educated

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a nursing home mainly for elderly people who need to be rehabilitated. They have had a variety of illnesses, mostly strokes, arthritis and broken bones. We have helped many people walk again, talk again, and return to a life worth living.

My anger is directed against the families of my patients. For example: I have in my care a woman who is grossly obese. We put her on a diet but her daughters are full of guilt because they feel their mother should be living with them. So they attempt to ease the guilt by bringing her candy, cakes, cookies -- everything she shouldn't eat. This woman is gaining weight instead of losing and we can't do anything about it.

Another patient who had a stroke could not feed himself. We worked diligently with him and he was doing well. Then his daughter decided we were being mean to her father. She started to come to the hospital daily to spoon-feed him. Now he has become totally dependent and refuses to do anything for himself.

I can't sign my name because nurses are expected to be compassionate toward everyone. I guess I'm a failure because my compassion goes primarily to my patients.

Please print this, Somebody might learn something.-- Seattle

Dear Seattle: As one who is close to the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, I am well aware of the dedication of physicians, nurses and therapists.

According to Dr. Henry Betts, medical director of the Institute, they encounter very little of the recalcitrance you describe at his facility because educating the families is considered part of the treatment. When relatives understand the importance of cooperation, they become part of the team.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers family planning for pets will be a reality soon. A dog food with a birth-control ingredient is being tested in eight cities. One company ran tests for two years on 200 female beagles. None became pregnant.

The U.S. has 36 million dogs and 27 million cats underfoot. This "miracle food" will solve a serious problem. Pass the word! --R.P.

Dear R.P.: When the product is available, I hope it is well advertised because I don't sell anything in this column, no matter how good.

Chaffee Democratic headquarters opens

Democrats present for the opening of the Democratic Headquarters at 113 W. Yoakum in Chaffee Wednesday were, from left, Bill Ferrell of Sikeston, unopposed candidate for Scott County Sheriff; Ben Marshall of Blodgett, chairman of the Scott County Central Democratic Committee; Scott County Sheriff John Dennis of Benton Route One, candidate for state senator, 27th District; Connie Shuford of Chaffee, publicity chairman for the Scott County Democratic Committee; State Representative Marvin Proffer of Jackson, of the 156th district which includes Chaffee, also seeking re-election; W. L. Shuford of Chaffee and Tom Marshall of Sikeston, Scott County Collector.

Headquarters offers information on candidates

CHAFFEE— Democratic Headquarters in Chaffee officially opened at 10 a.m. Wednesday with several candidates for state and county offices present, according to Mrs. Connie Shuford of Chaffee, publicity chairman for the Scott County Central Democratic Committee.

Mrs. Shuford said the headquarters would be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday with information on Democratic candidates for federal, state and local offices available to the public. She also said persons needing to cast absentee ballots in the Nov. 2 general election may pick up an application requesting the absentee ballot at the headquarters.

Commercial shipping on Mississippi River show hike

VICKSBURG, Miss. — Commercial shipping on the Mississippi River increased by 2.9 per cent during 1975, with a total of 311,239,484 tons, compared to 302,589,614 tons in 1974. This continues the history of the nation's largest river in showing an increase in traffic each year.

The figures are in an annual summary of shipping information compiled by the Waterborne Commerce Statistics Center, an agency of the Lower Mississippi Valley Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Commodity shipments sparking the increases were energy-related materials and farm products, while chemicals and allied products showed a drop, reflecting the economic decline of 1975.

Energy-related materials, which accounts for almost half the total commerce on the Mississippi River showed a gain of 12 per cent, sparked by a 70 per cent jump in crude petroleum imports. Coal, gasoline, fuel oil and distillate gases commerce were also higher.

Among farm products, the biggest percentage gains were recorded by shipments of rice, wheat and corn, much of it shipped to overseas markets. The volume of soybean traffic was down in 1975, compared to 1974.

Shipments of fertilizers reflected the general softness of chemical traffic, showing a 10 per cent drop.

Traffic shipments on the Mississippi River between Minneapolis and the Gulf traveled more than 119 billion ton miles in 1975, an increase of one and a half per cent.

The biggest percentage gain for any reach of the river was recorded by the Baton Rouge to New Orleans segment, whose traffic totaled 201,600,768 tons, an increase of 8.4 per cent over 1974.

Among ports, the biggest percentage gain was recorded by Minneapolis with a 25.6 per cent jump in traffic.

Traffic on the Mississippi River system, which includes the main channel and tributaries of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri and Illinois Rivers totaled 453,412,723 tons, an increase of 2.4 per cent over 1974.

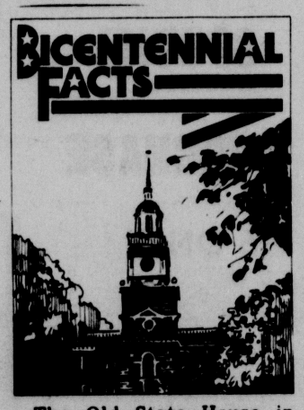
Shipping along the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway which skirts the Gulf of Mexico from Apalachee Bay, Fla., to the Mexican border decreased by 2.2 per cent last year to a total of 96,950,849 tons.

Printed copies of the statistics will be available for public sale the latter part of the year.

Bicentennial services set at Morehouse

MOREHOUSE— The nation's Bicentennial will be commemorated during Sunday's services at First Baptist Church, according to the Rev. Loran McCrary, pastor, who said a fellowship dinner will follow the morning worship service and an afternoon singing program will begin at 1:30.

The Tommy McDonald Family of Bragg City will be featured during the afternoon program, along with congregational singing.



The Old State House in Boston was erected in 1713. Here, in legislative chambers on Feb. 24, 1761, James Otis argued against the Writs of Assistance designed to end widespread smuggling of contraband goods. It was this speech that inspired John Adams to say: "Then and there the child independence was born," The World Almanac recalls.

Clarkton church homecoming day is on Sunday

CLARKTON— First General Baptist Church will have an all-day service Sunday in observance of its annual Homecoming Day.

A covered-dish dinner will be served at noon, and the Jericho Quartet and other local singing groups will be featured on the afternoon program, according to the Rev. E. E. Masterson, pastor.

Teller sentenced for embezzlement

POPLAR BLUFF — Gloria Sue Deem, 28, of Broseley, was sentenced to five years in prison this week by Judge Kenneth Wangelin after the former Southern Missouri Savings and Loan teller pleaded guilty to one count of embezzlement.

Wangelin sentenced Mrs. Deem under a special federal statute that requires the sentence to be reviewed after 90 days. She was ordered transported to a federal facility for study and evaluation pending her return to court in three months, although the judge gave the woman 30 days to get her affairs in order before she is taken into federal custody.

She was originally charged with five counts of embezzlement stemming from the theft of more than $10,000 from the Dexter Branch of Southern Missouri Savings and Loan between December, 1973, and September, 1975.

She pleaded guilty to the single count on Aug. 23.

Building becomes symbol of city

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When it was built in 1972, opponents called it a crass symbol of corporate power. But to thousands of tourists, the Transamerica Pyramid — like the cable cars and Coit Tower — has become a symbol of San Francisco.

Visitors send home post cards of the 48-story white spire and stop off to visit its half-acre redwood grove and catch the view from its 27th floor. Tourism officials say the building, located near the boundary of the financial district and the historic North Beach area, ranks high as a tourist stop.

When the edifice was still a gleam in the eyes of executives of the $2.4 billion conglomerate, John Krizek was orchestrating an elaborate propyramid public relations campaign which included hiring two bearded young men to "infiltrate" opposition rallies and carry signs supporting its construction.

He sees the building's new popularity as a vindication: "We honestly figured we were doing a damn good thing for this city, and we wondered why we should sit back and be accused of rape."

The battle was joined from the moment architects presented plans for the $34 million-plus building in 1969 and continued after ground-breaking, held a year later in secret to avoid demonstrators.

Many critics feared the building would start a development trend that would ruin the historic character of Jackson Square and North Beach. Protesters staged demonstrations at the old Transamerica building, marching and chanting before batteries of television news cameras.

"Business has generally been slow to use the television media the same way protesters of the '60s used it," Krizek said. "You know the way these things go, a few critics call up the television stations, and they all get together when the cameras are there and leave the moment the cameras leave, and the public gets the impression there's a huge public outcry.

"So we decided to hell with that, we're going to play their game."

He said the two "hippie-type" antiprotesters were members of an ad agency that had first come to Transamerica with an offer to help wage the public relations war for the pyramid.

That offer was turned down, but Krizek said he remembered them later and asked them to march along in an antipyramid demonstration, carrying probuilding signs. They made a point of talking to reporters and were quoted in local newspapers, receiving a "small honorarium" for their services, according to Krizek.

Some of the critics now look with kinder eyes at the spire. "Our fears so far have not been realized," said John Jacobs, whose San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association was vocal in its opposition to the project.

He said the city's designation of the Jackson Square area around the tower as an historic preserve where a one-year wait is required for demolition permits seems to be protecting the character of the area.

Three Tales Told With Charm & Grace

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT. By Norman Maclean. University of Chicago Press. 217 Pages. $7.95.

Norman Maclean started writing his first book of fiction at age 70, after he had retired as a professor of English at the University of Chicago. His book consists of two long and one brief fictionalized reminiscences about his youth and young manhood as the son of a Scottish Presbyterian minister in Montana.

The book also marks the first time the University of Chicago Press has published an original work of fiction. Its decision, no doubt, was influenced by the charm, the style, the grace with which these tales are told. They are warm and sentimental, humorous and sad; they evoke the loneliness and beauty of the vast mountain country of the American West early in the century, before the days of modern roads and communications.

The stories recall the joys of fly-fishing in unpolluted streams, work in a lumber camp, the boisterous lowlife of some of the men and women of tiny mountain towns, the comradeship and rivalries in a U.S. Forest Service camp, fighting forest fires, and human beings pitted against a harsh, unyielding environment.

Most of all, they recall the warmth and caring of a loving family.

Maclean's book should be especially interesting to outdoorsmen, especially those who know or admire the art of fly-fishing (but not bait-fishing.) And older readers, too, will be touched with nostalgia as they read and recall the less hurried days of an earlier time.

Knights of Columbus seek funds for retarded

Helping the Mentally Retarded help themselves will be the theme of the fund drive conducted by St. Francis Xavier Council, Knights of Columbus in Sikeston. This will be the Missouri Knights third annual fund raising drive conducted for the mentally handicapped citizens and will be held this Oct. 8, 9, and 10, according to Jimmy Jones Grand Knight. It is a statewide drive in which Tootsie Rolls are given in exchange for a donation to this cause.

The local council has selected Anton "Barney" Miederhoff as chairman of the area drive. The Knights will be aided in their solicitation by members of Daughters of Isabella.

Over 90 different organizations for the mentally handicapped received funds from this program during the past year. Funds from this program were also responsible for the implementation of a Citizens Advocacy Program during the past year.

A roadblock will be held at the intersection of Malone Avenue and Main Street and also at the Kingsway Shopping Mall on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 8 and 9.

Can't Tell Good Guys Without A Program

THE PIOUS AGENT. By John Braine. Atheneum. 252 Pages. $7.95.

In the brief note that precedes this complex thriller, author John Braine observes that each year some 50 or so unidentified corpses are found in the London area. He then adds that since 1961 no Soviet agent has been brought to trial in Britain.

Two unrelated facts? Perhaps. But Braine, author of the best-selling "Room At The Top," doesn't see it that way. Instead he postulates that within the British intelligence organization there is a little-known subgroup whose members are dedicated to eliminating Soviet agents.

Chief among these licensed hit men is Xavier Flynn, a curious blend of piety and viciousness, a cool, competent killer with deep religious convictions, a man who prays for the souls of the people he has killed.

Volleyball team loses

The Richland Rebels defeated the Sikeston volleyball team here yesterday evening in both the varsity and junior varsity matches.

The Rebels poured it on in the jayvee match, winning by scores of 15-4 and 15-9.

In the varsity contest, it was a different story, as Sikeston extended Richland to the full three games before bowing to the powerful Rebels. In the first game, the Bulldogs surprized Richland by a 15-11 count. However, the Rebels came back to win the next two by 15-8 and 15-7 scores.

Certainly Sikeston has no reason to be embarrassed as Richland is seeded first in the tough Stoddard County tournament which is coming up later this month.

Overall, coach Janie Merrick was pleased with her teams performance, as she said, "We blocked and spiked well, and played up to our capabilities."

Golfers beaten

The Sikeston golf team lost to the Kennett Indians at Kennett Wednesday afternoon by a score of 239-220.

The Kennett golf course is one of the toughest and most beautiful courses in Southeast Missouri. This point was very well illustrated when coach Snider said, "The girls found it a little difficult with a lot of water and trees."

The individual medalist honors went to C. Baker and Woodard of Kennett as they both posted 51's. Other scores for Kennett were B. Baker with a 58 and McDaniel who shot a 60.

The low round turned in by a Sikeston player was Paulette Mather's 56. Then came Betsy Sikes with a 59, followed by Dawn Friday witha 60, and Jill Meyer who carded a 64.

The next match for Sikeston will be a tri-match between Sikeston, Cape, and Arcadia. This meet will be held at Cape on Monday afternoon, October 11.

Tennis team is still unbeaten

The Sikeston tennis squad ran its record to 8-0 on the year with a relatively easy victory at Kennett Thursday afternoon. The final score was 9-3 Sikeston with both Lynn Bizzell and Linda Green missing action due to injuries. However, according to Asst. coach Judy Howley, "it was a cold and windy day and the girls played exceptionally well."

The results were:

Singles
Gail Strickland (S) defeated Kerri Cuff (K) 8-1
Melissa Lee (S) defeated Tammy Bowman (K) 8-6
Angie Sullivan (S) defeated Julie Nichols (K) 8-4
Ruth Butler (K) defeated Nancy Bohannon (S) 8-1

Veteran bush-league skipper Vern Rapp gets Redbird job

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Twice stymied in his bid for a major league job, Vern Rapp has succeeded on his third time around.

And, while in the process, the veteran of 15 minor league managerial seasons is coming home as field boss of the National League's St. Louis Cardinals.

"This is like a dream come true," the 48-year-old Rapp said Thursday when named to succeed Red Schoendienst, who was fired two days earlier.

"I think it's fantastic," he added from his suburban Denver home. "It's a tremendous challenge. I'm happy to be with the Cardinals because it's the organization I started with."

Rapp, a native son and product of Cleveland High, originally signed with St. Louis as a catcher in 1946.

Three decades later, however, his zeal was wearing thin following repeated successes at the helm of clubs in five major league chains.

"I felt stymied in Double+A," Rapp saidn of his departure from the Cards' organization in 1969 to manage Indianapolis of the American Association.

Seven years later he also abandoned hope with the Cincinnati Reds, the parent Indianapolis club, and instead took the job last season with the Denver Bears, a Montreal Expos team.

St. Louis' president, August A. Busch Jr., took note of Rapp's "excellent credentials," including an 86-50 record and the American Association title with Denver this year.

"He has been a proven and successful manager at the Triple+A level for eight years," Busch said in a statement. "Vern Rapp's long and successful career in developing young ball players leaves no doubt in my mind as to his abilities."

While at Denver, and earlier at Indianapolis, the new Cards manager had opportunities to watch much of the young club he inherits.

"I think I'm familiar in this aspect: I have managed against most of them when they were with Tulsa in the American Association," he said.

"I'm familiar with about twothirds of the personnel," Rapp noted. "I know their abilities and their capabilities."

The playing experience of Rapp included stops at St. Joseph, Omaha, Columbus, Houston and Rochester in the St. Louis chain and his managerial experience included brief terms with New York Yankee and Pittsburgh Pirate farm clubs.

"I was a bonus player," quipped Rapp, who signed originally with the Cardinals as an 18-year-old youth. "My bonus was a ticket to a Cardinal+Boston Brave doubleheader at Sportsman's Park. I signed between games."

Bulldogs battle Kennett tonight

Kennett coach Jim McCarthy has an unenviable task. He has to figure out how to stop the area's finest due of backs, James Wilder and Paul Bean, while at the same time figuring how to move the ball against a defense that has given up just 55 rushing yards the last two times out.

"I don't think that we've played up to our potential in the last three games," says McCarthy. In those three outings the Injuns have been belted 30-zip by Jackson, 42-6 by Poplar Bluff and 27-15 by Paragould, Arkansas.

"We give up," complains the Kennett coach. "We'll play a team tough until they get a couple touchdowns up. Then, we give up and they run away from us."

"We're just going to have to get up and get after those people," he emphasizes.

"Those people" are the big, imposing Sikeston Bulldogs, a team that seems to finally have realized its potential. The offense moved well, running up 493 yards in offense against Dexter. But, the defense was even more impressive. They shut out the conference's third-best scoring team, putting a screeching halt to quarterback Lance Espey and his aerial circus. Espey connected several times, but never threatened the goal line against Sikeston's suddenly impregnable defense.

Injuries have struck the Sikeston camp, but how they will affect the SHS lineup is not known. Center Robert Grant, a 200-pound senior should return, for the Kennett game as well as halfback Will Kaiser.

The Indian defense has to stop runners that have totaled over 1200 yards on the ground and another near-400 yards in the air. Meanwhile, the offensive line must make holes in the Sikeston defensive line for runner Mike Austin, who gained only 37 yards last week.

Their Sikeston counterparts--the Sikeston offensive front five--are much improved.

"They're doing a lot better," testified coach Murray Sullivan about his underlings.

The inexperienced line, a group that played entirely junior varsity games last year, has improved with age. With the size and strength they possess, the two tackles, two guards and a center plan to be a team strength by the end of the season.

Orr helps ruin Blues' opener

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It felt great to be back," declared Bobby Orr, a National Hockey League superstar who made a successful return from knee surgery Thursday night in his debut with the Chicago Black Hawks.

The 28-year-old Orr, showing little effect from an operation he underwent early last season, scored one goal and assisted on two others in leading Chicago to a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Blues in the opener for both teams.

"I had no pain in my knee at all," said Orr, a three-time NHL Most Valuable Player with the Boston Bruins who has had five knee operations. "I'm not kidding myself about being in prime condition. Exhibition games aren't enough when you've been out as long as I have. It will take time."

Chicago Coach Billy Reay allowed Orr the opportunity to give his knee an ample test, playing him 38 minutes and using him on all Black Hawk power plays.

"I'm going to play him the full two minutes of all power plays," Reay said. "Why shouldn't I? He's the best. If a game gets out of hand, maybe I'll rest him. But he's a hockey player and he came to play."

Orr played 10 games with the Bruins in 1975-76 before he underwent the operation and was lost for the season. The 10-year veteran became a free agent and signed a five-year, $3 million contract with Chicago.

The St. Louis coaching debut of Emile Francis, who came to the Blues from the New York Rangers, was spoiled by Orr's success, but Francis took it in stride.

"I've always enjoyed being behind the bench, but not when you lose," he said.

"Orr doesn't look any different to me," Francis added. "He's always made the puck do the work for him. He looks as mobile as ever. It's good to see him playing again. As much as he can hurt you, he's an asset to the league and the game."

Blues' center Derek Sanderson, a teammate of Orr's at Boston, thought Orr favored his injured leg.

Orr helps ruin Blues' opener

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It felt great to be back," declared Bobby Orr, a National Hockey League superstar who made a successful return from knee surgery Thursday night in his debut with the Chicago Black Hawks.

The 28-year-old Orr, showing little effect from an operation he underwent early last season, scored one goal and assisted on two others in leading Chicago to a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Blues in the opener for both teams.

"I had no pain in my knee at all," said Orr, a three-time NHL Most Valuable Player with the Boston Bruins who has had five knee operations. "I'm not kidding myself about being in prime condition. Exhibition games aren't enough when you've been out as long as I have. It will take time."

Chicago Coach Billy Reay allowed Orr the opportunity to give his knee an ample test, playing him 38 minutes and using him on all Black Hawk power plays.

"I'm going to play him the full two minutes of all power plays," Reay said. "Why shouldn't I? He's the best. If a game gets out of hand, maybe I'll rest him. But he's a hockey player and he came to play."

Orr played 10 games with the Bruins in 1975-76 before he underwent the operation and was lost for the season. The 10-year veteran became a free agent and signed a five-year, $3 million contract with Chicago.

The St. Louis coaching debut of Emile Francis, who came to the Blues from the New York Rangers, was spoiled by Orr's success, but Francis took it in stride.

"I've always enjoyed being behind the bench, but not when you lose," he said.

"Orr doesn't look any different to me," Francis added. "He's always made the puck do the work for him. He looks as mobile as ever. It's good to see him playing again. As much as he can hurt you, he's an asset to the league and the game."

Blues' center Derek Sanderson, a teammate of Orr's at Boston, thought Orr favored his injured leg.

Sikeston athlete Scott Carmody displays the first place trophy he won at the Zone Punt, Pass and Kick competition at Cape Girardeau recently. The nine- year-old gridder will take part in the District event tomorrow at Shaw Park in Clayton, Missouri.

Wilder and Johnson lead rushers; Grubbs and Kiefer top receivers

Tight races abound for the statistical leadership in most categories, yet East Prairie's Danny Johnson doesn't seem to appreciate the beauty of close competition. He is running away with two races, rushing and scoring, in the Southern Division.

Sikeston's James Wilder assumed the rushing and scoring leads in the Northern Division off of his two and a half period effort against Dexter last Friday. Wilder carried the pigskin 11 times for 127 yards and three scores. He is now 47 yards ahead of Poplar Bluff's suspended back David Webb for the rushing title, 572 yards to 525, and eight points ahead of Cape's Jerome Smith, 50 points to 42, for the scoring title.

Dexter's Mike Grubbs leads the receiving race by one catch over Joe Giesler, 13 to 12, and Lance Espey is the division's leading passer. However, Sikeston's David Shell is the area's top percentage passer with a 58.3 percent mark. His 392 yards passing place him second in Northern division passing.

Don Kiefer is the South's top receiver and his Chaffee teammage, Randy Horrell, is the South's top passer by four yards, 331 yards to 327, over Gary Springs of Illmo-Scott City.

Johnson leads Southern Division rushers by a wide margin. His 1181 running yards are almost three times as many as second place Jim Kilgore of Malden has. The East Prairie flash has scored 72 points.

Sikeston boy set for District PP&K

For the second year in a row, nine-year-old-old Scott Carmody has advanced to the District level of the Ford Motor Company Punt, Pass and Kick competition. But the Sikeston youth hopes that the outcome will be different this year than last.

"I guess I was a little nervous," said the blonde-haired athlete about his performance last year. He will get another chance tomorrow as he competes against eleven other zone winners in the district event at Shaw Park in Clayton, Misosuri.

Carmody, who is the son of Ronald and Linda Carmody of Sikeston, racked up 156¾ points in the Local PP&K competition early in September. Although he slipped in two of the three events at the Zone competition in Cape Girardeau two weeks later, the Sikeston youth boosted his point total to 164 points to win going away again.

Scott admits that he will have to have his best performances in all three events--punting, passing and place kicking -- to have a shot at winning tomorrow at Clayton. The winner of the 10:00 a.m. event will compete in the area finals to be held during the halftime of the Cardinal-Washington Redskin football game at Busch Stadium November 21.

Punting is Scott's favorite event, although he works hard at all three. In the Local competition, his punt was only 41¾ feet, far below normal for him. But at the Zone event, he punted the football 56½ feet. (It should be pointed out that in Punt, Pass and Kick, accuracy is important. The distance your kick or throw is away from the tape is subtracted from the distance of your kick.)

In the passing and kicking events, young Carmody didn't do quite as well at Cape as at Sikeston. His pass went down from 60½ feet to 54 feet, and his place kick was 53½ feet, rather than 54½ feet.

Although Carmody is big for his age (4'8" tall and 73 pounds), he says that he concentrates on accuracy while competing.

He didn't win first, second or third place last year at Clayton, where the competition gets extremely tough. But Scott says that he shouldn't be as nervous this time around. "I hope I can do a little better this year."

8th grade rips Kennett; Freshmen lose first game

KENNETT— Sikeston Junior High School split a pair of games at Kennett last night, with the eighth grade team walloping the Indians 42-0 and the freshmen losing 38-24 to the Kennett ninth-graders.

Eighth grade coach Mike Foster praised the entire Bulldog defensive unit for their work in shutting out the Kennett crew. When asked for a defensive standout, Foster replied, "Edwin Beasley, Rob Porter, Lewis Burge, Tharon Ford, Scott McDowell, Alan Barborek, David Leek, Steve Rice, Tom Gardner, Calvin Howard and Kenneth Moorman," Foster had listed the entire SJHS defensive lineup.

Coach Foster also praised the work of the offensive line. "You know they did a heckuva job if we scored that many points."

Rusty Greer's twelve-yard run in the first period gave Sikeston their first score of the ballgame. Undra Lane passed to Marcus Bryant on the option for a 20-yard scoring strike in the second period and then ran 28 yards himself later in the quarter, helping Siketon take a 22-0 halftime lead. Greer added two-point conversion runs after both second-quarter TD's.

Greer scored his second touchdown of the game in the third quarter with a nine-yard gallop to run the count to 28-zip. After Scott McDowell recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff, Sikeston drove for another score, with McDowell's one-yard quarterback sneak capping the 45-yard drive. Sikeston got their last touchdown with 36 seconds left as Tharon Ford carried the ball in from fifteen yards out and scored the two-pointer himself.

In the freshman game, Sikeston's ninth-grade team lost their first game in two-years of organized football. They had been undefeated so far this year after a perfect campaign as eighth graders last year.

Freshman coach George Hale blamed a poor defensive effort for the loss. "The offense played well enough to win," Hale said, but admitted that breakdowns on several big plays killed his team. Kennett's touchdowns came on runs of 50 and 80 yards, a 19-yard pass, a 39-yard punt return and a 76-yard kickoff return.

Sikeston's scores came in the second and fourth quarters. John Longstreet's one-yard plunge put the Bulldogs on the board in the second period, with Joey Kyle keeping the ball for the two-pointer The duo switched roles on the next touchdown, which also came in the second quarter. Kyle went in from the fifteen, with Longstreet added the PAT.

Kyle scored his second touchdown of the game in the fourth quarter, sneaking in from two-yards out. Harry Tope went in for the conversion.

Panel picks together, sticks together

"Together we stand. Together we fall."

Well, nobody will move ahead in the standings as far as the Daily Standard's prognosticators are concerned this week. All three agree on all nine games this week, meaning that the Forb will still lead as he does this week, 80.9 percent on the season.

However, it was the Chief who excelled a week ago. Our fearless leader hit seven of eight tries, winning the pot for the second time this year. The Chief just grinned, knowing that he "could do it any time."

Things aren't too hard this week, according to the panel. There are only two games "up in the air," and they're not that hard to pick:

CHARLESTON AT DEXTER – A couple of teams going nowhere this year. The future does look good for Dexter and the panel thinks that junior Q-B Lance Espey will pass Charleston silly. Coach Tom Thrower's club is the solid pick to avoid the Northern Division cellar during their first year in the league.

CHIEF: Dexter by 10.
FORB: Dexter by 6.
T-BONE: Dexter by 3.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY – Despite the Rams' big upset win over Chaffee a week ago, our panel went with Caruthersville all the way. The Tigers are ranked second in the state and, despite their weak competition so far, the tireless trio believes in that ranking.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 3.
FORB; Caruthersville by 6.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 7.

CAPE AT JACKSON – A huge crowd is expected for this one ... so big that the game was almost moved to Houck. Home fields won't play a big part in this game's decision, though, as Jackson's defense should be way too tough for the suddenly-pushover Cape Central Tigers.

CHIEF: Jackson by 14.
FORB: Jackson by 17.
T-BONE: Jackson by 7.

BLYTHEVILLE, ARKANSAS AT POPLAR BLUFF -- A couple years ago Bytheville won a state championship and Poplar Bluff has lost two very good backs. Despite all this the panel goes with Poplar Bluff's defense -- perhaps the district's finest.

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 7.
FORB: Poplar Bluff by 8.
T-BONE: Poplar Bluff by 13.

HAYTI AT CHAFFEE -- Chaffee has something to prove after last week's debacle at Scott City and Hayti is on the hot spot. Oughta be rough for first-year coach Perry Gooch.

CHIEF: Chaffee by 25.
FORB: Chaffee by 14.
T-BONE: Chaffee by 20.

EAST PRAIRIE AT DONIPHAN – Danny Johnson ought to have a field day against Doniphan's huge, but slow, defensive line. East Prairie doesn't have much except the versatile and talented Johnson, but he'll be more than enough against the winless Dons.

CHIEF: East Prairie by 20.
FORB: East Prairie by 14.
T-BONE: East Prairie by 14.

PORTAGEVILLE AT MALDEN -- The Wave are improving, but Portageville still has a shot at the conference title if Chaffee, Caruthersville and I-SC slip.

CHIEF: Portageville by 14.
FORB: Portageville by 12.
T-BONE: Portageville by 7.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT GOSNELL, ARKANSAS — Gosnell. Gosnell. Gosnell. We'd pick anybody over South Pem this year. They've got troubles.

CHIEF: Gosnell by 6.
FORB: Gosnell by 11.
T-BONE: Gosnell by 14.

SIKESTON AT KENNETT -- The Bulldogs defeense will be tested by Mike Austin, the Indian runningback, but the hosts will find it hard to move the ball against Sikeston. Meanwhile, who's stopped Wilder, Bean and Shell? Nobody, so far.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 30.
FORB: Sikeston by 28.
T-BONE: Sikeston by 21.

Missouri visits K-State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Mention the word "inconsistency" to some football coaches and all you get are dirty looks.

But Ellis Rainsberger will tell you his Kansas State Wildcats could use a little of that commodity — if it means winning a few football games.

The Wildcats, who have been consistent enough to lose their last three contests, open their Big Eight Conference schedule here Saturday against 9th-ranked Missouri, regarded as one of the country's most sporadic squads.

"Missouri already has shown that it is a great football team," insists Rainsberger, noting that the Tigers' 3-1 mark includes upsets of Southern Cal and Ohio State.

"They can do it all now that they have finally put it together defensively."

Kansas State, winless since upsetting Brigham Young in the season opener, has been bothered by inexperience at quarterback and numerous injuries.

Dexter's Mike Grubbs leads the receiving race by one catch over Joe Giesler, 13 to 12, and Lance Espey is the division's leading passer. However, Sikeston's David Shell is the area's top percentage passer with a 58.3 percent mark. His 392 yards passing place him second in Northern division passing.

Don Kiefer is the South's top receiver and his Chaffee teammage, Randy Horrell, is the South's top passer by four yards, 331 yards to 327, over Gary Springs of Illmo-Scott City.

Johnson leads Southern Division rushers by a wide margin. His 1181 running yards are almost three times as many as second place Jim Kilgore of Malden has. The East Prairie flash has scored 72 points.

"I guess I was a little nervous," said the blonde-haired athlete about his performance last year. He will get another chance tomorrow as he competes against eleven other zone winners in the district event at Shaw Park in Clayton, Misosuri.

Carmody, who is the son of Ronald and Linda Carmody of Sikeston, racked up 156¾ points in the Local PP&K competition early in September. Although he slipped in two of the three events at the Zone competition in Cape Girardeau two weeks later, the Sikeston youth boosted his point total to 164 points to win going away again.

Scott admits that he will have to have his best performances in all three events--punting, passing and place kicking -- to have a shot at winning tomorrow at Clayton. The winner of the 10:00 a.m. event will compete in the area finals to be held during the halftime of the Cardinal-Washington Redskin football game at Busch Stadium November 21.

Punting is Scott's favorite event, although he works hard at all three. In the Local competition, his punt was only 41¾ feet, far below normal for him. But at the Zone event, he punted the football 56½ feet. (It should be pointed out that in Punt, Pass and Kick, accuracy is important. The distance your kick or throw is away from the tape is subtracted from the distance of your kick.)

In the passing and kicking events, young Carmody didn't do quite as well at Cape as at Sikeston. His pass went down from 60½ feet to 54 feet, and his place kick was 53½ feet, rather than 54½ feet.

Although Carmody is big for his age (4'8" tall and 73 pounds), he says that he concentrates on accuracy while competing.

He didn't win first, second or third place last year at Clayton, where the competition gets extremely tough. But Scott says that he shouldn't be as nervous this time around. "I hope I can do a little better this year."

8th grade rips Kennett; Freshmen lose first game

KENNETT— Sikeston Junior High School split a pair of games at Kennett last night, with the eighth grade team walloping the Indians 42-0 and the freshmen losing 38-24 to the Kennett ninth-graders.

Eighth grade coach Mike Foster praised the entire Bulldog defensive unit for their work in shutting out the Kennett crew. When asked for a defensive standout, Foster replied, "Edwin Beasley, Rob Porter, Lewis Burge, Tharon Ford, Scott McDowell, Alan Barborek, David Leek, Steve Rice, Tom Gardner, Calvin Howard and Kenneth Moorman," Foster had listed the entire SJHS defensive lineup.

Coach Foster also praised the work of the offensive line. "You know they did a heckuva job if we scored that many points."

Rusty Greer's twelve-yard run in the first period gave Sikeston their first score of the ballgame. Undra Lane passed to Marcus Bryant on the option for a 20-yard scoring strike in the second period and then ran 28 yards himself later in the quarter, helping Siketon take a 22-0 halftime lead. Greer added two-point conversion runs after both second-quarter TD's.

Greer scored his second touchdown of the game in the third quarter with a nine-yard gallop to run the count to 28-zip. After Scott McDowell recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff, Sikeston drove for another score, with McDowell's one-yard quarterback sneak capping the 45-yard drive. Sikeston got their last touchdown with 36 seconds left as Tharon Ford carried the ball in from fifteen yards out and scored the two-pointer himself.

In the freshman game, Sikeston's ninth-grade team lost their first game in two-years of organized football. They had been undefeated so far this year after a perfect campaign as eighth graders last year.

Freshman coach George Hale blamed a poor defensive effort for the loss. "The offense played well enough to win," Hale said, but admitted that breakdowns on several big plays killed his team. Kennett's touchdowns came on runs of 50 and 80 yards, a 19-yard pass, a 39-yard punt return and a 76-yard kickoff return.

Sikeston's scores came in the second and fourth quarters. John Longstreet's one-yard plunge put the Bulldogs on the board in the second period, with Joey Kyle keeping the ball for the two-pointer The duo switched roles on the next touchdown, which also came in the second quarter. Kyle went in from the fifteen, with Longstreet added the PAT.

Kyle scored his second touchdown of the game in the fourth quarter, sneaking in from two-yards out. Harry Tope went in for the conversion.

Panel picks together, sticks together

"Together we stand. Together we fall."

Well, nobody will move ahead in the standings as far as the Daily Standard's prognosticators are concerned this week. All three agree on all nine games this week, meaning that the Forb will still lead as he does this week, 80.9 percent on the season.

However, it was the Chief who excelled a week ago. Our fearless leader hit seven of eight tries, winning the pot for the second time this year. The Chief just grinned, knowing that he "could do it any time."

Things aren't too hard this week, according to the panel. There are only two games "up in the air," and they're not that hard to pick:

CHARLESTON AT DEXTER – A couple of teams going nowhere this year. The future does look good for Dexter and the panel thinks that junior Q-B Lance Espey will pass Charleston silly. Coach Tom Thrower's club is the solid pick to avoid the Northern Division cellar during their first year in the league.

CHIEF: Dexter by 10.
FORB: Dexter by 6.
T-BONE: Dexter by 3.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT ILLMO-SCOTT CITY – Despite the Rams' big upset win over Chaffee a week ago, our panel went with Caruthersville all the way. The Tigers are ranked second in the state and, despite their weak competition so far, the tireless trio believes in that ranking.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 3.
FORB; Caruthersville by 6.
T-BONE: Caruthersville by 7.

CAPE AT JACKSON – A huge crowd is expected for this one ... so big that the game was almost moved to Houck. Home fields won't play a big part in this game's decision, though, as Jackson's defense should be way too tough for the suddenly-pushover Cape Central Tigers.

CHIEF: Jackson by 14.
FORB: Jackson by 17.
T-BONE: Jackson by 7.

BLYTHEVILLE, ARKANSAS AT POPLAR BLUFF -- A couple years ago Bytheville won a state championship and Poplar Bluff has lost two very good backs. Despite all this the panel goes with Poplar Bluff's defense -- perhaps the district's finest.

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 7.
FORB: Poplar Bluff by 8.
T-BONE: Poplar Bluff by 13.

HAYTI AT CHAFFEE -- Chaffee has something to prove after last week's debacle at Scott City and Hayti is on the hot spot. Oughta be rough for first-year coach Perry Gooch.

CHIEF: Chaffee by 25.
FORB: Chaffee by 14.
T-BONE: Chaffee by 20.

EAST PRAIRIE AT DONIPHAN – Danny Johnson ought to have a field day against Doniphan's huge, but slow, defensive line. East Prairie doesn't have much except the versatile and talented Johnson, but he'll be more than enough against the winless Dons.

CHIEF: East Prairie by 20.
FORB: East Prairie by 14.
T-BONE: East Prairie by 14.

PORTAGEVILLE AT MALDEN -- The Wave are improving, but Portageville still has a shot at the conference title if Chaffee, Caruthersville and I-SC slip.

CHIEF: Portageville by 14.
FORB: Portageville by 12.
T-BONE: Portageville by 7.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT GOSNELL, ARKANSAS — Gosnell. Gosnell. Gosnell. We'd pick anybody over South Pem this year. They've got troubles.

CHIEF: Gosnell by 6.
FORB: Gosnell by 11.
T-BONE: Gosnell by 14.

SIKESTON AT KENNETT -- The Bulldogs defeense will be tested by Mike Austin, the Indian runningback, but the hosts will find it hard to move the ball against Sikeston. Meanwhile, who's stopped Wilder, Bean and Shell? Nobody, so far.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 30.
FORB: Sikeston by 28.
T-BONE: Sikeston by 21.

Missouri visits K-State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Mention the word "inconsistency" to some football coaches and all you get are dirty looks.

But Ellis Rainsberger will tell you his Kansas State Wildcats could use a little of that commodity — if it means winning a few football games.

The Wildcats, who have been consistent enough to lose their last three contests, open their Big Eight Conference schedule here Saturday against 9th-ranked Missouri, regarded as one of the country's most sporadic squads.

"Missouri already has shown that it is a great football team," insists Rainsberger, noting that the Tigers' 3-1 mark includes upsets of Southern Cal and Ohio State.

"They can do it all now that they have finally put it together defensively."

Kansas State, winless since upsetting Brigham Young in the season opener, has been bothered by inexperience at quarterback and numerous injuries.

Ford finds himself in diplomatic tangle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford found himself in a diplomatic tangle Thursday for disclaiming Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, and challenger Jimmy Carter worked hard at keeping him krom wriggling free.

"It's crazy," one senior European diplomat said of Forj's assertion during the TV debate with Carter. "If it isn't, what's the North Atlantic Alliance (NATO) all about?"

Led by Ford himself, administration officials backpedaled. The President told a rally at the University of Southern California that "the United States has never conceded and never will condede (Eastern Europe's) domination by the Soviet Union."

But Carter labeled Ford's assertion that the Russians do not dominate the area "ridiculous" and said it showed the President was confused about America's principles.

"I understand Polish-Americans for Ford is disbanding," Carter joked in an appearance before a labor leaders group in San Francisco.

He said Ford's remark was "a very serious blunder" and "a disgrace to our country."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and other administration officials insisted that Ford had meant to indicate the United States would not accept Russian domination of Eastern Europe.

Some diplomats at the United Nations agreed with this interpretation. But privately they also expressed disbelief at the President's assertion during the jebate that "there is no Soviet domination of eastern Europe ... "

Ford also caught some heat for saying he did not believe the Yugoslavs, Romanians or Poles considered themselves dominated by the Soviet Union.

"It came out as if Ford had failed to read his computer printouts on East Europe correctly," said a West European diplomat.

The London Evening News called Ford's remarks a "clanger" and said political observers felt he had committed "a major gaffe." A commentator on Italian television called the Ford debate statement a "grave faux pas."

Sikeston schools plan workshop

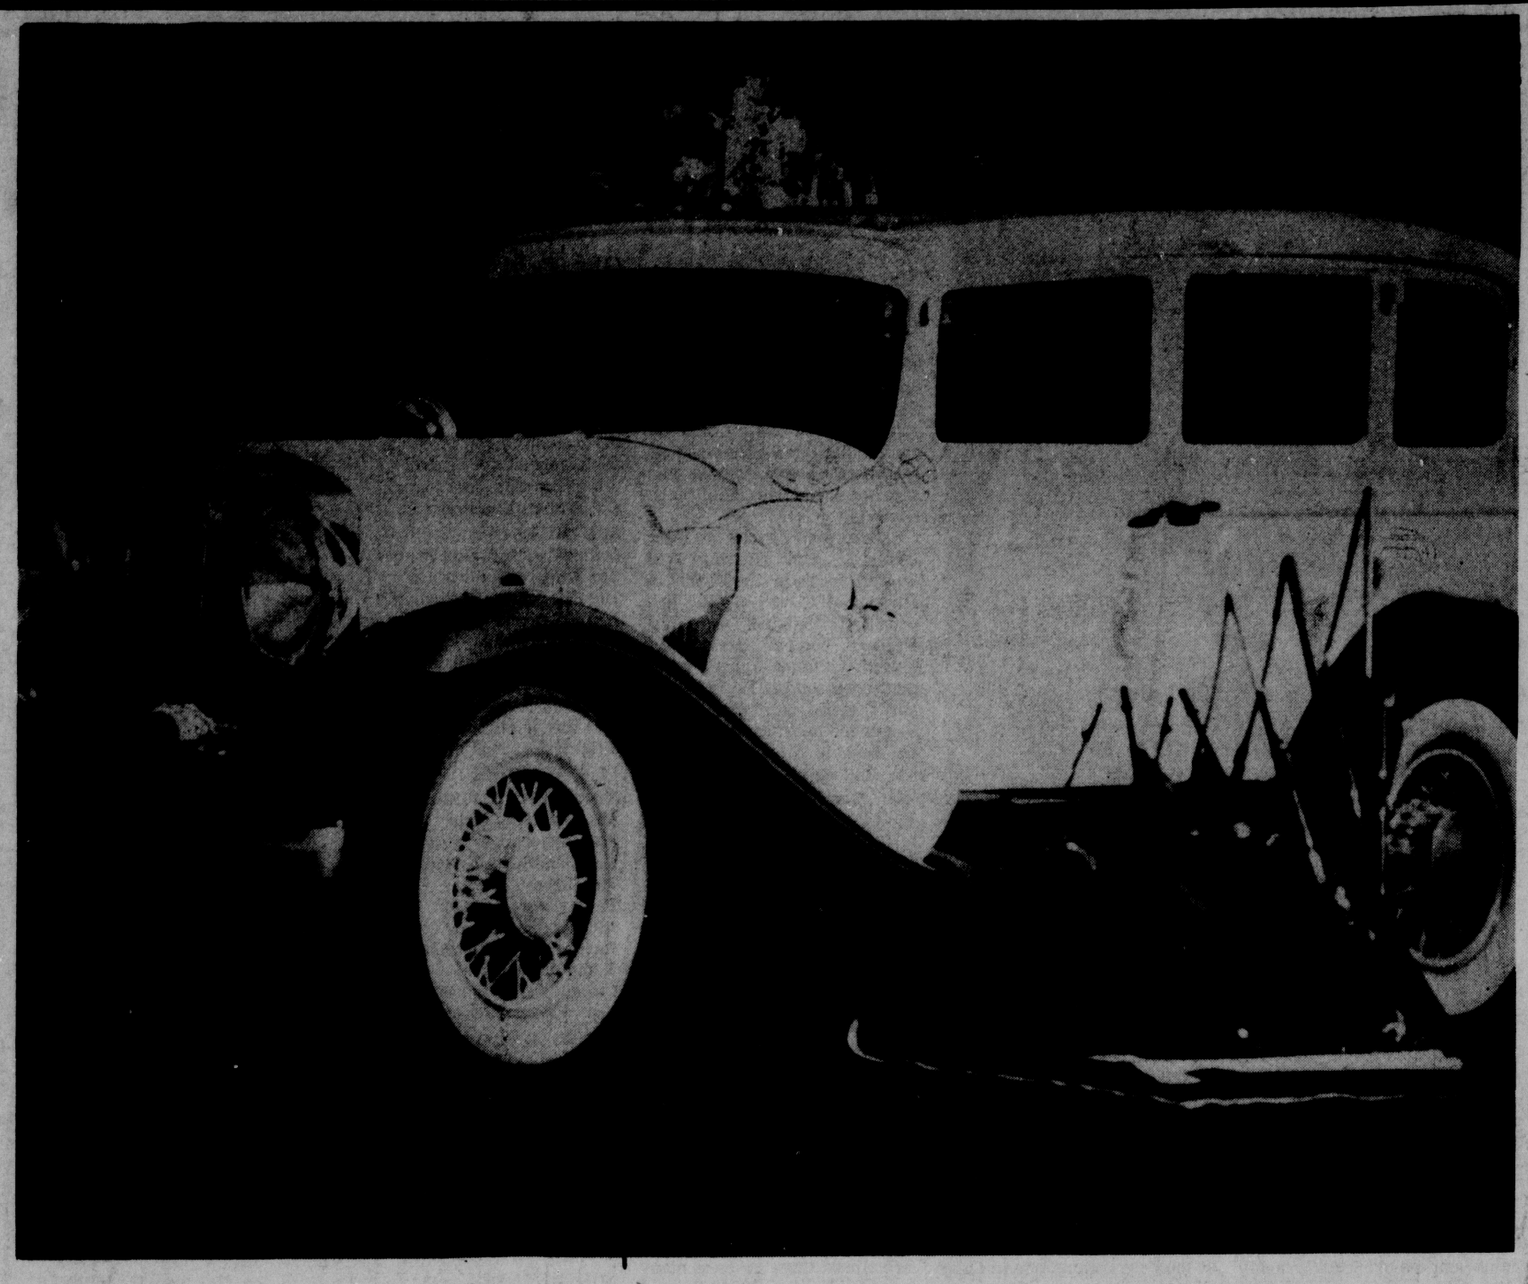
Sikeston teachers and administrators will attend an inservice training workshop next Thursday afternoon and Friday.

The workshop is scheduled from 2:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday. On Friday, selected teaching personnel and administrators will be involved in further workshop activities and evaluation.

Elementary teachers will attend sessions dealing with curriculum materials, teaching techniques and methods, communications and human relations. Consultants from publishing companies will present curriculum materials, methods and techniques in the area of reading, mathematics, metrics and science.

Secondary staff will be scheduled in three groups, each led by a consultant trained in communication skills, strategies and techniques that can be used to foster improved human relationships in the classrooms. The sessions will be conducted by lectures, films and experimental activities.

Students will be dismissed at 1:30 p.m. Thursday and resume regular classes Oct. 18.



John Dillinger's captured car, a 1931 Studebaker, will be displayed at Kingsway Mall from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday. Also on display will be Dillinger's gang's arsenal and "Killer Shark", one of the largest blue sharks caught off the coast of the Bahama Islands. Part of the Mall Merchants proceeds will go to the Scott County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Handicapped workshop is set for November 20

CAPE GIRARDEAU — One of five regional workshops conducted by the Missouri White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals will be held Nov. 20 at the Holiday Inn.

Jack Ford, regional chairman, notes that the pre-registration deadline is Oct. 22. Those wishing to attend the conference should request registration forms from P.O. Box 68, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701. Registration forms will also be available from local employment offices, family services and vocational rehabilitation offices.

Pre-registration will allow the conference to mail workbooks to those wishing to participate in time for them to study the issues to be discussed during the workshop.

The White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals is to provide a national assessment of problems and potentials of those with physical or mental handicaps, to generate a national awareness of these problems and potentials, and to make recommendations to the President and Congress which, if implimented, will enable the handicapped to live independentaly with dignity and full participation in community life.

The final White House Conference report to the President will offer very specific solutions to problems facing the handicapped and an implimentation plan to the President and Congress will insure followup of conference recommendations.

The Cape Girardeau meeting will begin with registration at 8 a.m. There is no charge for the workshop. A $3 luncheon will be served.

Other regional workshops are scheduled in Springfield, Kansas City, Columbia and St. Louis.

S.H.S. coach sends protest to state against Dexter for use of illegal player

50 years ago
October 8, 1926

Mr. and Mrs. John Harris, living four miles southwest of Sikeston, are parents of a baby daughter born October 3.

Coach J. H. Moore of the local high school has sent in a protest to the Secretary of the State High School Athletic Association regarding the football game Friday which Dexter won from Sikeston by a 3 to 0 score. The grounds on which the protest is based is the alleged use of four post graduate students by Dexter in Friday's game. Under the regulations of the State Association, such players are ineligible and if the protest is allowed, Dexter may be suspended from the Association. Post graduate students are those having completed the regular four-year course of high school work for their diplomas, who return for an additional year.

What's the law?

The case of the soused suitor

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Wilbur hoisted several brews at a local publ before setting out to keep a date with a girl named Violet. Being a bit potted, he ended up at the wrong address.

Told that no Violet lived there, Wilbur proved extremely skeptical and began giving Mrs. Logan, the lady of the house, an argument.

Consequently, she screamed for help to her husband, who arrived on the scene with a cub in his hand. And when Wilbur refused to leave, the irate Mr. Logan shoved him toward the door.

Seeing red instead of Violet, Wilbur responded to the shove by bouncing one off Mr. Logan's nose. Mr. Logan, in turn, whacked Wilbur across the shoulder with his club.

Resenting the blow, Wilbur wrestled the club free from Mr. Logan and hit him over the noggin with it. With his head feeling three times its size, Mr. Logan had Wilbur arrested on charges of assault and battery.

"He came into my house, refused to leave and began beating me over the head with my own club," he complained in court. "If nothing else, it was downright nervy."

"I acted solely in self-defense," was Wilbur's answer. "He started the pushing and he started the club- swinging. I wasn't looking for trouble. I was only looking for Violet."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you accept Wilbur's plea of self- defense?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person enters upon someone else's property without their invitation or license, he is there unlawfully as a trespasser and the owner may take reasonable steps to remove him. And, noted the judge, if he has the abilbity to leave and fails to do so, he cannot fight back and claim self-defense. It is only when he is assaulted without a request to leave, concluded the judge, or when he is willing to leave peacefully, that he may fight back to protect himself.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James A. Harvey today at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape. Darla Kay has been selected as the name for the new baby. Her mother is the former Miss Kay Miller, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Miller, 529 Coleman, where she makes her home while her husband is in the Navy.

The Pastor of the recently organized Second Methodist congregation of Sikeston is the Rev. Chester Pulliam, who conducted the first services in the new church Sunday

What's the law?

The case of the soused suitor

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Wilbur hoisted several brews at a local publ before setting out to keep a date with a girl named Violet. Being a bit potted, he ended up at the wrong address.

Told that no Violet lived there, Wilbur proved extremely skeptical and began giving Mrs. Logan, the lady of the house, an argument.

Consequently, she screamed for help to her husband, who arrived on the scene with a cub in his hand. And when Wilbur refused to leave, the irate Mr. Logan shoved him toward the door.

Seeing red instead of Violet, Wilbur responded to the shove by bouncing one off Mr. Logan's nose. Mr. Logan, in turn, whacked Wilbur across the shoulder with his club.

Resenting the blow, Wilbur wrestled the club free from Mr. Logan and hit him over the noggin with it. With his head feeling three times its size, Mr. Logan had Wilbur arrested on charges of assault and battery.

"He came into my house, refused to leave and began beating me over the head with my own club," he complained in court. "If nothing else, it was downright nervy."

"I acted solely in self-defense," was Wilbur's answer. "He started the pushing and he started the club- swinging. I wasn't looking for trouble. I was only looking for Violet."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you accept Wilbur's plea of self-defense?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person enters upon someone else's property without their invitation or license, he is there unlawfully as a trespasser and the owner may take reasonable steps to remove him. And, noted the judge, if he has the abilbity to leave and fails to do so, he cannot fight back and claim self-defense. It is only when he is assaulted without a request to leave, concluded the judge, or when he is willing to leave peacefully, that he may fight back to protect himself.

"Tell me a story about me."

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, October 8, the 282nd day of 1976. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, the Spanish mission at San Francisco was founded.

On this date:

In 1871, the great Chicago fire was touched off in Mrs. O'Leary's barn.

In 1903, the United States and China signed a commercial treaty.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted for murder in the death of the infant son of Charles Lindbergh.

In 1918, World War I hero Sergeant Alvin York killed 20 German soldiers in the Argonne Forest in France.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that the secret of production of the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1970, Soviet writer, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Navy, facing a shortage of combat pilots, extended the duty of some officers for one more year.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, an army sergeant from Michigan, John Sexton, 22, escaped from a Communist jail where he had been been held two years and reached safety after a long hike.

One year ago: President Ford proposed legislation to reduce government economic controls over U.S. domestic airlines.

Today's birthday: Black activist Jesse Jackson is 35.

Thought for today: Give me neither poverty nor riches. — The Proverbs.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Paul Revere invested 218 pounds in a privateer — a vessel that would seek to capture British ships.

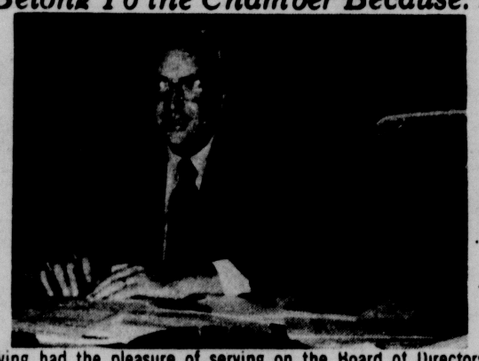
"I Belong To the Chamber Because..."



"Having had the pleasure of serving on the Board of Directors of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce and even more so as a past President of this fine organization, I feel that I am well acquainted with the functions of the Chamber and would like to urge all businesses that aren't members to give careful consideration in becoming a member.

The prime organization in promoting the City of Sikeston is the Chamber. *It sponsors "Sikeston Value Day" which is a combined effort of all businesses to entice people to shop in Sikeston

*It writes hundreds of letters and answers scores of inquiries from prospective industries.

*It assists all new businesses in getting started on the right foot and is available to any established business for assistance.

*It has several committees to assist in making Sikeston a better city in which to live.

*Its members make many trips trying to persuade industry to locate in Sikeston.

These are just a few of its many functions. if you aren't a member please consider investing in the future of Sikeston."

Mayor proclaims "Help Retarded Citizens Weekend" in Sikeston

Sikeston Mayor Don Fulton has proclaimed today Saturday and Sunday as "Help Retarded Citizens Weekend" in Sikeston.

In a statement issued today, Fulton said, "The retarded of our country have been neglected and treated as sub-human for many decades, forced to live menial and degrading existences without opportunities available to so called normal citizens.

"The Knights of Columbus is a charitable and fraternal organization, and has done so much to promote the dignity and welfare of the mentally retarded.

"I call upon our city and its citizens to support the Knights of Columbus in this most worthwhile and humanitarian effort."

Floodway work gets Senate okay, work may begin in October '77

The design planning phase of levee improvements in the Birds Point-New Madrid Floodway and St. John's Bayou areas was authorized in a bill passed by the Senate Sept. 28, but no work can be expected to begin on that phase until October of 1977 at the earliest.

According to the office of Congressman Bill D. Burlison, the Water Resources Development Act of 1976 includes authorization of $300,000 for the Corps of Engineers to prepare the construction plans for the proposed project. The bill is now awaiting President Ford's signature.

The Corps, calling it a flood control project, proposed to close the New Madrid gap between the setback and main line levees, and to build three pumping stations—one in Mississippi County and two in New Madrid County.

The gap closure would prevent the river from "backing" into the floodway during high water periods. The pumping stations would permit seep water and interior runoff water to be evacuated from behind the river levees when gravity outlets are closed due to high water in the river.

Before engineering work can begin on the project authorized by the Water Resources Act, the funds must be appropriated. Since Fiscal Year 1977 (October 1, 1976 to Sept. 30, 1977) has already begun, the Phase One work could not be started before the beginning of Fiscal 1978, next Oct. 1, according to Congressman Burlison's office.

It is anticipated that hearings on the new budget will be held early next year. If the project is included in the appropriations legislation at that time, the Corps of Engineers could probably complete the design work within the following year, the Congressman's spokesman said.

Still unresolved is a conflict between the recommendations of the Corps of Engineers and a decision by the Office of Management and Budget over whether the project should be considered a flood control project or a drainage improvement plan.

The Congressional committee authorized the Phase One study in accordance with the recommendations of the chief of engineers, that the plan be considered a flood control project. However, the OMB still considers the plan primarily a drainage improvement plan, and recommends that some of the costs be borne by local interests, according to the Congressman's office.

The cost sharing features will be reconsidered when the Phase Two authorization legislation is brought before the Congress.

Ford finding more thorns while on fall campaign trail

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

President Ford, making his first extensive trip of the fall campaign, is finding there are more thorns on the campaign trail than in the White House Rose Garden.

Ford often has been criticized by Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter for his early strategy of remaining in the White House away from the rigors of the campaign. Carter complained that Ford carried on his candidacy with bill-signing appearances in the White House Rose Garden where he had little chance to fall under public scrutiny.

But Ford is in the middle of a week-long campaign trip, his third and longest vote-gathering expedition since Labor Day. He was heckled by a group of students on the campus of the University of Southern California and found himself on the defensive Thursday because of two statements he made during Wednesday night's debate with Carter:

—First, Ford touched off a flood of adverse reaction when he asserted during the debate that the Soviets do not dominate the nations of Eastern Europe.

—Second, Ford vowed during the debate that he would order the Commerce Department to make public the names of U.S. corporations "that have participated in the Arab boycott" of Israel or of companies employing Jews.

By Thursday, Ford was in effect backing off on the Eastern Europe question, although he did not acknowledge he was doing so and did not retract his original statement.

And Commerce Department officials said what Ford had actually told them to do was to release names of any companies that become involved in the boycott after Thursday. Names of companies that participated in the boycott earlier will not be disclosed, said spokesman Horace Webb. Those companies are said to number in the hundreds.

Webb said he could see that some people might have interpreted Ford's remarks as indicating past reports would be made public. He said it was "a matter of semantics."

Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, hit the Eastern European quotation hard at each stop, obviously adopting the Ford statement as a major issue.

Carter said repeatedly that Ford's Eastern Europe statement was "a blunder," a "disgrace" and that it showed insensitivity.

Ford said during the debate that "there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and there never will be under a Ford administration."

On Thursday, Ford told an audience in Los Angeles that the United States "firmly supports the aspirations for independence of the nations of Eastern Europe. The United States has never conceded and never will concade their domination by the Soviet Union."

Ford, speaking to a crowd of about 15,000 at USC, said it is his policy to help Eastern European countries "become less dependent on the Soviet Union."

Ford's statement during the debate touched off a storm of protests, both from allies abroad and from groups representing Americans of Eastern European descent.

Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, also said Ford's comments presented "some problems."

Dole said he was uncertin what the President meant in his remarks about Eastern Europe, but he defended Ford's position in speeches at party fund-raisers in Detroit and Chicago.

Carter took his campaign to Los Angeles and later to Salt Lake City, where he said he was "shocked by the insensitivity and lack of knowledge which Mr. Ford displayed."

Carter said, "The Poles and the Czechs and Hungarians and East Germans have been under the domination of the Soviet Union for a long time. The Soviet Union has tank divisions and hundreds of thousands of troops in those countries to keep them under Soviet domination."

According to the Pentagon, there are 31 Soviet army divisions in those four Eastern European countries.

Earlier, Ford visited the Rockwell International plant in Los Angeles where he criticized Carter's defense plans. He posed for pictures in a mockup of the controversial B1 bomber.

Later, he attended a $1,000-per-person GOP fund-raiser with Ronald Reagan, the man he defeated for the party's nomination.

Reagan spoke to the group and managed to call for Ford's election without saying anything in Ford's favor. Ford had little to say about Reagan except to note they were "teaming up" to carry California.

In his speech, Ford downplayed the importance of the debate with Carter, saying, "This election isn't just a televised quiz show to see which contestant gets to live in the White House for four years. Make no mistake. This election is about the direction America will take in its third century of independence."

Mondale was in Miami, where he attacked Ford's misstatement about the release of the names of companies participating in the Arab boycott of Israel.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee said he doubted that Ford ever had any intention of releasing the names of the companies that participate in the boycott. "It raises questions of how truthful his campaign really is," Mondale said.

Burlison urges adoption of state preferential primary

WASHINGTON, D.C.— In a speech on the floor of Congress prior to adjournment, U.S. Rep. Bill Burlison urged the adoption of state presidential preferential primaries, leading eventually to enactment of an amendment that would provide for a nation-wide primary.

The 10th District Congressman told his colleagues, "The caucus-convention system must go" as he argued for an end to caucus and convention systems which he charged "led themselves to manipulation by a few party leaders who totally control the process."

Rep. Burlison inserted editorials from area and state newspapers to back up his arguments for inauguration of the preferential primary.

"There should be but on way to select the President," the Southeast Missouri Democrat said. "The votes, all the voters, should be in control of the selection of their chief executive at each level of the process — from the first bold announcement of candidacy to the swearing in on the capitol steps."

Burlison said that eventually he hopes the "reform spirit will lead us to a truly democratic system of nominating our national candidates, one that will be responsive to the directly expressed will of the people on a national basis."

He said that personally he favored a national primary and noted that he had introduced a constitutional amendment to establish such a primary, which would be held in the summer of each election year. "I have favored this plan for a long time, and, indeed, I first introduced such legislation prior to the 1972 elections."

Burlison called on his fellow House members to "at least strive to reform the system on a state level" adding that "hopefully those of us who still have the caucus system will urge our state legislators to put our states in the mainstream of the electoral reform with adoption of a state presidential primary." The Cape Giarardeau Democrat added that he pledged to do his part in trying to get the system started in Missouri, which he noted was the largest state not holding a preferential primary.

Burlison inserted editorials from The Daily Democrat in Kennett, Chaffee Signal, Fredericktown Democrat-News, Festus Daily News-Democrat, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, two editorials from the Springfield Leader-New, and a radio broadcast editorials from the Springfield Leader-News, and a radio broadcast editorial by KMOX in St. Louis. He added that two other newspapers in the 10th District, the Dexter Statesman Messenger and the Flat River Journal, had also editorialized for a preferential primary in the state.

Burlison noted that he had been "personally involved" in past convention delegate selection efforts. "I went to the national convention in Atlantic City in 1964 as a full voter delegate. In 1972, I fought it out with the Governor of my state for control of the delegation in my congrtessional district, and lost in a close winner-take-all contest. This year I have been a delegate at the ward, county, district, state and national levels. My participation has each time confirmed my basic conviction that our system is inherently wrong. It discourages participation by the people by its complexity and consumption of time. It lends itself to manipulation by a few party leaders who totally control the process."

Mayor proclaims "Help Retarded Citizens Weekend" in Sikeston

Sikeston Mayor Don Fulton has proclaimed today Saturday and Sunday as "Help Retarded Citizens Weekend" in Sikeston.

In a statement issued today, Fulton said, "The retarded of our country have been neglected and treated as sub-human for many decades, forced to live menial and degrading existences without opportunities available to so called normal citizens.

"The Knights of Columbus is a charitable and fraternal organization, and has done so much to promote the dignity and welfare of the mentally retarded.

"I call upon our city and its citizens to support the Knights of Columbus in this most worthwhile and humanitarian effort."

Floodway work gets Senate okay, work may begin in October '77

The design planning phase of levee improvements in the Birds Point-New Madrid Floodway and St. John's Bayou areas was authorized in a bill passed by the Senate Sept. 28, but no work can be expected to begin on that phase until October of 1977 at the earliest.

According to the office of Congressman Bill D. Burlison, the Water Resources Development Act of 1976 includes authorization of $300,000 for the Corps of Engineers to prepare the construction plans for the proposed project. The bill is now awaiting President Ford's signature.

The Corps, calling it a flood control project, proposed to close the New Madrid gap between the setback and main line levees, and to build three pumping stations—one in Mississippi County and two in New Madrid County.

The gap closure would prevent the river from "backing" into the floodway during high water periods. The pumping stations would permit seep water and interior runoff water to be evacuated from behind the river levees when gravity outlets are closed due to high water in the river.

Burlison urges adoption of state preferential primary

WASHINGTON, D.C.— In a speech on the floor of Congress prior to adjournment, U.S. Rep. Bill Burlison urged the adoption of state presidential preferential primaries, leading eventually to enactment of an amendment that would provide for a nation-wide primary.

The 10th District Congressman told his colleagues, "The caucus-convention system must go" as he argued for an end to caucus and convention systems which he charged "led themselves to manipulation by a few party leaders who totally control the process."

Rep. Burlison inserted editorials from area and state newspapers to back up his arguments for inauguration of the preferential primary.

"There should be but on way to select the President," the Southeast Missouri Democrat said. "The votes, all the voters, should be in control of the selection of their chief executive at each level of the process — from the first bold announcement of candidacy to the swearing in on the capitol steps."

Burlison said that eventually he hopes the "reform spirit will lead us to a truly democratic system of nominating our national candidates, one that will be responsive to the directly expressed will of the people on a national basis."

He said that personally he favored a national primary and noted that he had introduced a constitutional amendment to establish such a primary, which would be held in the summer of each election year. "I have favored this plan for a long time, and, indeed, I first introduced such legislation prior to the 1972 elections."

Burlison called on his fellow House members to "at least strive to reform the system on a state level" adding that "hopefully those of us who still have the caucus system will urge our state legislators to put our states in the mainstream of the electoral reform with adoption of a state presidential primary." The Cape Giarardeau Democrat added that he pledged to do his part in trying to get the system started in Missouri, which he noted was the largest state not holding a preferential primary.

Burlison inserted editorials from The Daily Democrat in Kennett, Chaffee Signal, Fredericktown Democrat-News, Festus Daily News-Democrat, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, two editorials from the Springfield Leader-New, and a radio broadcast editorials from the Springfield Leader-News, and a radio broadcast editorial by KMOX in St. Louis. He added that two other newspapers in the 10th District, the Dexter Statesman Messenger and the Flat River Journal, had also editorialized for a preferential primary in the state.

Burlison noted that he had been "personally involved" in past convention delegate selection efforts. "I went to the national convention in Atlantic City in 1964 as a full voter delegate. In 1972, I fought it out with the Governor of my state for control of the delegation in my congrtessional district, and lost in a close winner-take-all contest. This year I have been a delegate at the ward, county, district, state and national levels. My participation has each time confirmed my basic conviction that our system is inherently wrong. It discourages participation by the people by ts complexity and consumption of time. It lends itself to manipulation by a few party leaders who totally control the process."

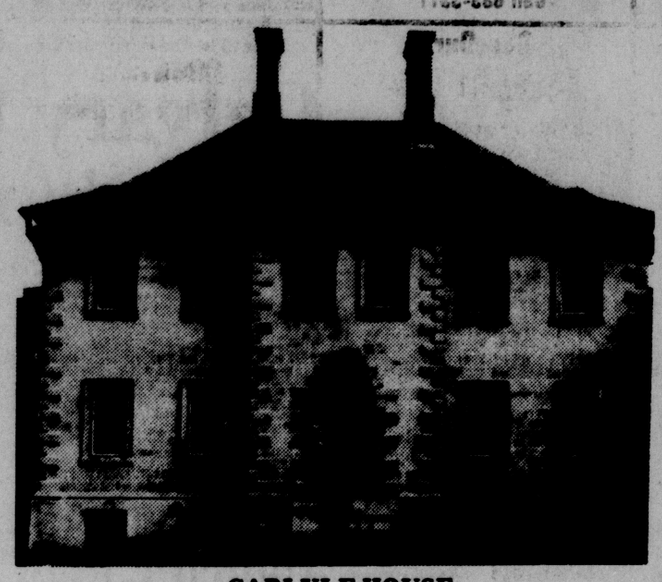
Carlyle House Is Restored



CARLYLE HOUSE

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — One of the truly historic houses of the national capital area, built 20 years after the birth of George Washington who often visited it, has opened here after a $2.5-million restoration.

It is a stately stone mansion built in 1752 by a Scottish merchant, John Carlyle, for his bride, Sara Fairfax.

Alexandria was founded largely by Scots merchants a century and a half before anyone ever thought of putting the nation's capital a few miles north and on the other side of the Potomac River.

The city became a thriving port city; it still has more original houses than Williamsburg, Va., and more old ones than Georgetown, the most historic section of Washington, D.C.

Carlyle House was a social and political center during the days leading up to the Revolution. Gen. Edward Braddock used it as his headquarters in 1755 while preparing to march to Pittsburgh and his death during the French and Indian Wars.

It was here that Braddock met with the colonies' five royal British governors in April 1755 to discuss ways to force the colonists to pay for the British campaign.

The meeting led to the Stamp Act, which helped provoke the Revolution.

The Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority, which owns the house, last year found proof of the meeting, which some historians have questioned.

An original letter that John Carlyle wrote to his brother in Scotland about Braddock's visit was found among family papers in a mansion in Argyll, Scotland. He complained of discourteous treatment.

Also found was the only known portrait of John Carlyle, painted in 1765 by the American artist John Hesselius. Both the letter and the portrait have been lent by owner Sir Fitzroy Maclean for display in the house during the bicentennial year.

Carlyle House, a rare survivor of mid-Georgian plantation architecture, originally overlooked the Potomac, and while it is still in the heart of the city, other structures now obstruct the view.

Most of the furnishings are items that were used by Carlyle and his family in the years 1752-1830. Many were preserved by descendants and have been loaned to the Park Authority for exhibit, including a family Bible and a portrait of Carlyle's mother.

The restoration project uncovered five 18th-and 19th-century privy shafts, predecessors of present trash disposal systems. The largest shaft contained household objects dating from 1785 to 1855.

Archeologists found an intact 18th-century Liverpool pitcher, a clay pipe bowl decorated with Masonic emblems in relief, assorted glassware and eating utensils, unbroken 18th-century wine and beer bottles and a hand-carved African wooden doll with brass earrings.

A black silk slipper believed to have belonged to Carlyle's daughter, Sarah, was discovered behind a wall. The artifacts are displayed in special exhibit cases.

An architectural exhibit room exposes the original construction of plaster, fireplace openings and floorbeams to show visitors how houses were constructed in the 18th century.

The house and its ¾-acre site were bought by the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority in 1969.

The restoration cost nearly $2.5 million, most of it contributed by jurisdictions in the area, with federal matching funds of $500,000.

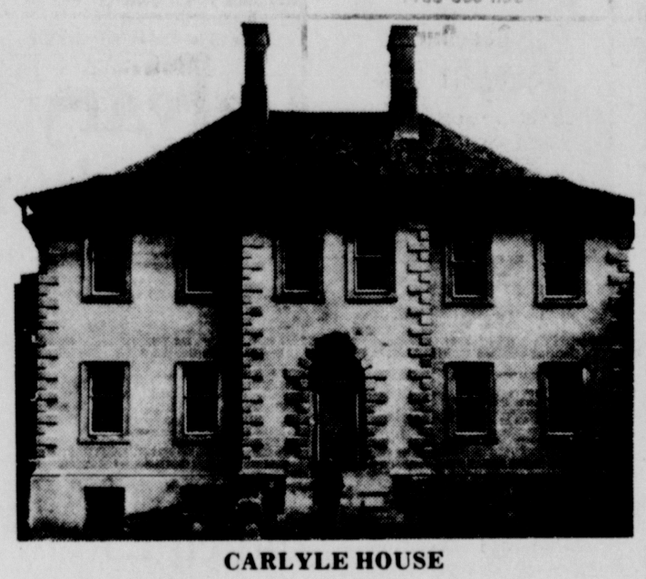
Carlyle House Is Restored



CARLYLE HOUSE

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — One of the truly historic houses of the national capital area, built 20 years after the birth of George Washington who often visited it, has opened here after a $2.5-million restoration.

It is a stately stone mansion built in 1752 by a Scottish merchant, John Carlyle, for his bride, Sara Fairfax.

Alexandria was founded largely by Scots merchants a century and a half before anyone ever thought of putting the nation's capital a few miles north and on the other side of the Potomac River.

The city became a thriving port city; it still has more original houses than Williamsburg, Va., and more old ones than Georgetown, the most historic section of Washington, D.C.

Carlyle House was a social and political center during the days leading up to the Revolution. Gen. Edward Braddock used it as his headquarters in 1755 while preparing to march to Pittsburgh and his death during the French and Indian Wars.

It was here that Braddock met with the colonies' five royal British governors in April 1755 to discuss ways to force the colonists to pay for the British campaign.

The meeting led to the Stamp Act, which helped provoke the Revolution.

The Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority, which owns the house, last year found proof of the meeting, which some historians have questioned.

An original letter that John Carlyle wrote to his brother in Scotland about Braddock's visit was found among family papers in a mansion in Argyll, Scotland. He complained of discourteous treatment.

Also found was the only known portrait of John Carlyle, painted in 1765 by the American artist John Hesselius. Both the letter and the portrait have been lent by owner Sir Fitzroy Maclean for display in the house during the bicentennial year.

Carlyle House, a rare survivor of mid-Georgian plantation architecture, originally overlooked the Potomac, and while it is still in the heart of the city, other structures now obstruct the view.

Most of the furnishings are items that were used by Carlyle and his family in the years 1752-1830. Many were preserved by descendants and have been loaned to the Park Authority for exhibit, including a family Bible and a portrait of Carlyle's mother.

The restoration project uncovered five 18th-and 19th-century privy shafts, predecessors of present trash disposal systems. The largest shaft contained household objects dating from 1785 to 1855.

Archeologists found an intact 18th-century Liverpool pitcher, a clay pipe bowl decorated with Masonic emblems in relief, assorted glassware and eating utensils, unbroken 18th-century wine and beer bottles and a hand-carved African wooden doll with brass earrings.

A black silk slipper believed to have belonged to Carlyle's daughter, Sarah, was discovered behind a wall. The artifacts are displayed in special exhibit cases.

An architectural exhibit room exposes the original construction of plaster, fireplace openings and floorbeams to show visitors how houses were constructed in the 18th century.

The house and its ¾-acre site were bought by the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority in 1969.

The restoration cost nearly $2.5 million, most of it contributed by jurisdictions in the area, with federal matching funds of $500,000.

HOW CAN YOU BE SO SURE THAT REAL ESTATE WILL INCREASE IN VALUE?
Stated in its simplest terms, your "guarantee" of increase in the value of real estate lies in the fact that land is the only thing in the world which is absolutely limited in supply, while the rise in the world population constantly increases the demand for it.
Perhaps it was said even more clearly by the man who commented, "The good Lord stopped making land a long, long time ago, but He's making more people than ever before!"
